

PARASITIC VENTURES PRESS

PARASITIC VENTURES PRESS

淹

淹

Book of Music

PARASITIC VENTURES PRESS

淹

Lost Book Series: 2007

₩ WWW.PARASITICVENTURESPRESS.COM

BOOK L HSIO R.

CHAPTER 1. 1. The Master said, 'ts it not pleasant to learn with a constant perseverance and application?

 's it not delightful to have friends coming from distant quarters?"

3. 'Is he not a man of complete virtue, who feels no discomposure though men may take no note of him?"

CHAPTER 8.1. The philosopher Yu said, They are few who, being filial and fratemal, are fond of offending against their superiors. There have been none, who, not liking to offend against their superiors, have been fond of stering up confusion.

 The superior man bends his attention to what is radical. That being established, all practical courses naturally grow up. Filial piety and featernal submissionlare they not the root of all benevolent actions?

CHAPTER III. The Master said, 'Fine words and an insinuating appearance are seldom associated with true virtue.'

CNAPTER N. The philosopher Tuang said, 'I daily examine myself on three points:-- schetther, in transacting business for others, I may have been not faithful;-- schetther, in intercourse with triends, I may have been not sincare;- whether I may have not mastered and practised the instructions of my teacher."

Confucius

CHAPTER V. The Master said, To rule a country of a thousand charists, there must be reservent attention to business, and sincerity; economy in expenditure, and lose for men; and the employment of the people at the proper seasons.'

CHAPTER VI. The Master said, 'A youth, when at home, should be Blai, and, abroad, respectful to his elders. He should be earnest and truthful. He should overflow in love to all, and cultivate the hierability of the good. When he has time and opportunity, after the performance of these things, he should employ them in polite studies.'

CHAPTER VIII. Tuze-Insia said, 'If a main withdraws his mind from the lowe of beauty, and applies it as sincerely to the lowe of the virtuous; if, in sensing his parents, he can exert his utmost strength; if, in sensing his prince, he can devote his life; if, in his intercourse with his friends, his words are sincere:- although men say that he has not learned, I will cartainly say that he has.'

CHAPTER WE. 1. The Master said, 'If the scholar be not grave, he will not call forth any veneration, and his learning will not be solid.

- 2. Yield faithfulness and sincarity as first principles.
- 3. Have no hiends not equal to yourself.
- 4. When you have faults, do not fear to abandon them."

CHAPTER IX. The philosopher Tsang said, 'Let there be a careful attention to perform the funeral rites to parents, and let them be followed when long gone with the caremonies of sacrifica;- then the virtue of the people will resume its proper excellence."

CHAPTER X. 1. Ture-ch'in asked Ture-kung, saying, When our master comes to any country, he does not fail to learn all about its government. Does he ask his information? or is it given to him?

 Tope-kung said, 'Our master is benign, upright, courteous, temperate, and complainant, and thus he gets his information. The master's mode of asking information!--- is it not different from that of other men?"

CHAPTER EL The Master said, 'While a man's father is allow, look at the bent of his will; when his father is dead, look at his conduct. If for three years he does not after from the way of his father, he may be called fillal.'

CHAPTER XX. 1. The philosopher Yu said, 'to practising the rules of propriety, a natural ease is to be prized, in the ways prescribed by the ancient kings, this is the escalart quality, and in things small and great we fullow them.

 Yet it is not to be observed in all cases. If one, knowing how such case should be prized, manifests it, without regulating it by the rules of propriety, this likewise is not to be done."

CHAPTER ESS. The philosopher Yu said, 'When agreements are made according to what is right, what is spoken can be made good. When respect is shown according to what is proper, one keeps far from shame and disgoate. When the parties upon whom a man learn are proper persons to be intimate with, he can make them his guides and masters.' CNAFTER EN. The Master said, 'He who aims to be a man of complete uittue in his food does not seek to gutily his appetilie, nor in his desetting place does he seek the applances of ease; he is earnest in what he is doing, and careful in his speech; he frequents the company of men of principle that he may be rectified such a person may be said indeed to lose to learn.'

CHAPTER EV. 1. Tran-kung said, 'What do you pronounce concerning the poor man who yet does not fatter, and the rich man who is not proud?' The Master replied, 'They will do: but they are not equal to him, who, though poor, is yet cheerful, and to him, who, though rich, loses the rules of propriety.'

 Tuze-kung replied, 'It is said in the Book of Poetry, 'As you cut and then file, as you canse and then polish.'--The meaning is the same, I apprehend, as that which you have just expressed.'

 The Master said, 'With one like Ts'ze, I can begin to talk about the odes. I told him one point, and he knew its proper sequence.'

CHAPTER EM. The Manter said, 'I will not be afflicted at men's not knowing me; I will be afflicted that I do not know men.'

BOOK IL WEI CHANG.

CHAPTER 1. The Master said, 'He who exercises government by means of his virtue may be compared to the north polar star, which keeps its place and all the stars turn towards 8.'

CRAPTER 8. The Master said, 'to the Book of Poetry are three hundred pieces, but the design of them all may be embraced in one sentence— "Having no depraved thoughts."

CHAPTER III. 1. The Master said, 'If the people be led by laws, and uniformity sought to be given them by punishments, they will try to avoid the punishment, but have no sense of shame.

If they be led by virtue, and uniformity sought to be given them by the rules of propriety, they will have the sense of shame, and moreover will become good."

CHAPTER N. 1. The Master said, 'H filteen, I had my mind bent on learning.

- 2. 'He thirty, I stood flem.
- 3. 'He forty, I had no doubts.
- 4. 'He filly, I know the decrees of Heaven.

 'Ht sidy, my ear was an obedient organ for the reception of truth.

'R seventy, I could follow what my heart desired, without transpressing what was right.'

CHAPTER V. 1. Mang I asked what filal piety was. The Master said, 'B is not being disobedient,'

 Scon after, as Fan Ch'Ih was driving him, the Master told him, saying, 'Mang-sun asked me what filial piety was, and I areasered him,-- "not being disobedient."

 Fan CN'Ih said, 'What did you mean?' The Master replied, 'That parents, when alise, be served according to propriety: that, when dead, they should be buried according to propriety; and that they should be sacrificed to according to propriety.'

CHAPTER M. Mang Wu asked what fillal piety was. The Master said, 'Parents are annious lest their children should be sick.'

CHAPTER VB. Ture-yu asked what filial piety was. The Master said, 'The filial piety of nose-a-days means the support of one's parents. But dogs and horses likewise are able to do something in the way of support,-without reservoirs, what is there to distinguish the one support given from the other?

CHAPTER WE. Tupe-Inia asked what filial piety was. The Master said, 'The difficulty is with the countemance. If, when their elders have any troublesome affairs, the young take the toil of them, and if, when the young have wine and food, they set them before their elders, is 1HS to be considered filial piety?

Book of Music

CHAPTER IX. The Master said, 'I have talked with Hui for a schole day, and he has not made any objection to anything I said,-- as if he were stupid. He has retired, and I have examined his conduct when away from me, and Round him able to illustrate my teachings. Huil-- He is not stupid.'

CHAPTER X. 1. The Master said, 'See what a man does.

- 2. Mark his motives.
- 3. Examine in what things he rests.
- 4. 'How can a man conceal his character?
- 5. How can a man conceal his character?

CHAPTER EL The Master said, 'If a man keeps cherishing his old knowledge, so as continually to be acquiring new, he may be a teacher of others.'

CHAPTER IN. The Master said, 'The accomplished scholar is not a utensik.'

CHAPTER XML Tuze-kung asked what constituted the superior man. The Master said, 'He acts before he speaks, and aftenwards speaks according to his actions.'

CHAPTER EN: The Master said, 'The superior man is catholic and no partisan. The mean man is partisan and not catholic.'

CHAPTER IN: The Master said, 'Learning without thought is labour lost; thought without learning is perilous.'

Confucius

CHAPTER XM. The Master said, 'The study of strange doctrines is injurious indeed?'

CHAPTER EVE. The Master said, 'Ku, shall I teach you what knowledge is?' When you know a thing, to hold that you know it; and when you do not know a thing, to allow that you do not know it,- this is knowledge.'

CHAPTER XVII. 1. Tuze-chang was learning with a view to official emolument.

2. The Master said, 'Hear much and put aside the points of which you stand in doubt, while you speak cautiously at the same time of the others:- then you will afford hew occasions for blame. See much and put aside the things which seem peritous, while you are cautious at the same time in carrying the others into practice:- then you will have fee occasions for repentance. When one gives fee occasions for blame in his words, and fee occasions for repentance in his conduct, he is in the way to get emolument.'

CHAPTER EX. The Duke Ai asked, saying, 'What should be done in order to secure the submission of the people?' Confucius replied, 'Advance the upright and set aside the crooked, then the people will submit. Advance the crooked and set aside the upright, then the people will not submit.'

CHAPTER XX. Chi K'ang asked how to cause the people to revenence their ruler, to be faithful to him, and to go on to sense themselves to virtue. The Master said, 'Let him preside over them with gravity;- then they will revenence him. Let him be filial and kind to all;- then they will be faithful to him. Let him advance the good and teach the incompetent;- then they will eagerly seek to be virtuess.' CHAPTER XEL 1. Some one addressed Confuctor, saying. 'Six, why are you not engaged in the powenment?

 The Master said, 'What does the Shu-ching say of Slat piety?-- "You are Slat, you discharge your brotherly duties, These qualities are displayed in government." This then also constitutes the exercise of government. Why must there be THA?- making one be in the government?"

CHAPTER XXX. The Master said, 1 do not know how a man without truthfulness is to get on. How can a large carriage be made to go without the cross-bar for yoking the owen to, or a small carriage without the amargement for yoking the horses?

CNAPTER XXIII. 1. Tuo-chang asked schether the affairs of ten ages after could be known.

2. Confluctors said, "The Yin dynastly followed the regulations of the Hsia: wherein it took from or added to them may be known. The Orau dynastly has followed the regulations of Yin: wherein it took from or added to them may be known. Some other may follow the Orau, but though it should be at the distance of a hundred ages, its affairs may be known.'

CHAPTER XXIV. 1. The Master said, 'For a man to sacrifice to a spirit which does not belong to him is failury.

To see what is right and not to do it is want of courage.'

BOOK IS, PA 194.

CHAPTER 1. Confluctus said of the head of the Chi family, who had eight rows of partitumimes in his area, 'If he can bear to do this, what may he not bear to do?"

CHAPTER 8. The three families used the YUNG ode, while the vessels were being removed, at the conclusion of the sacrifics. The Master said, "Assisting are the princes;- the son of heaven books profound and grave."- what application can these words have in the hall of the three families."

CHAPTER III. The Master said, 'If a man be without the virtues proper to humanity, what has he to do with the rites of propriety? If a man be without the virtues proper to humanity, what has he to do with music?

CHAPTER N. 1. Lin Fang asked what was the first thing to be attended to in caremonies.

2. The Master said, 'A great question indeed!

 In feature commonies, it is better to be sparing than extrawagant, in the commonies of mourning, it is better that there be deep somow than a minute attention to obsenances."

Confucius

CHAPTER V. The Master said, 'The rude tribes of the east and north have their princes, and are not like the States of our great land which are without them.'

CHAPTER VI. The chief of the Chi family was about to sacrifice to the T'ai mountain. The Master said to Zan Yu, 'Can you not save him from this?' He amsemed, 1 cannot,' Confucius said, 'Alan' will you say that the T'ai mountain is not so discerning as Lin Fang?'

CHAPTER VIII. The Master said, 'The student of virtue has no contentions. If it be said he cannot avoid them, shall this be in archery? But he boses complainantly to his competitions; thus he accends the hall, descends, and exacts the furfait of drinking in his contention, he is still the Chan-tues.'

CHAPTER VIII. 1. Tuze-Insia asked, saying, What is the meaning of the passage-- "The pretty dimplex of her artful unite! The well-defined black and white of her eye! The plain ground for the colours?"

The Master said, 'The business of laying on the colours follows (the preparation of) the plain ground.'

 Commonies then are a subsequent thing?" The Master said, 'it is Shang who can bring out my meaning. Now I can begin to talk about the odes with him."

CHAPTER IX. The Master said, 'I could describe the caremonies of the Hsia dynasty, but Chi cannot sufficiently attent my words. I could describe the caremonies of the Yin dynasty, but Sung cannot sufficiently attent my words. (They cannot do so) because of the imsufficiency of their records and wise men. If those were sufficient, I could adduce them in support of my words.' CHAPTER X. The Master said, 'Ht the great sacrifice, after the pouring out of the libation, I have no wish to look on."

CHAPTER EL Some one asked the meaning of the great sacrifics. The Master said, 1 do not know. He who knew its meaning would find it as easy to govern the kingdom as to look on this;- pointing to his pain.

CHAPTER EE. 1. He sacrificed to the dead, as if they were present. He sacrificed to the spirits, as if the spirits were present.

 The Master said, 'I consider my not being present at the sacrifice, as if I did not sacrifice.'

CHAPTER XIR. 1. Wang-sun Chia asked, saying. 'What is the meaning of the saying, 'It is better to pay court to the furnace than to the south-west come?"

The Master said, 'Not so. He who offends against Heaven has none to whom he can pray.'

CHAPTER EN: The Master said, 'Chau had the advantage of viewing the two past dynasties. How complete and elegant are its regulations! I follow Chau.'

CHAPTER EV. The Master, when he entered the grand temple, asked about everything. Some one said, 'Who will say that the son of the man of Tsau knows the sales of propriety' He has entered the grand temple and asks about everything.' The Master heard the remark, and said, 'This is a sale of propriety.'

CHAPTER SM. The Master said, 'to archery it is not going through the leather which is the principal thing -- because people's strength is not equal. This was the old way.'

CHAPTER EVE. 1. Ture-kung wished to do away with the offering of a sheep connected with the inauguration of the first day of each month.

The Master said, 'Ts'ze, you love the sheep; I love the caremony.'

CHAPTER EVE. The Master said, 'The full observance of the rules of propriety in sensing one's prince is accounted by people to be flattery.'

CHAPTER EX. The Duke Ting asked hose a prince should employ his ministers, and hose ministers should sense their prince. Confucius replied, 'A prince should employ his minister according to according to the rules of propriety, ministers should sense their prince with faithfulness.'

CHAPTER XX. The Master said, 'The Reson Tau is expressive of enjoyment without being licentious, and of grief without being hutfully excessive.'

CHAPTER XEL 1. The Duke Ai asked Tuai Wo about the altars of the spirits of the land. Tuai Wo replied, "The this scorereign planted the pine tree about them; the men of the Yin planted the oppress; and the men of the Oau planted the chestnut tree, meaning thereby to cause the people to be in asse."

 When the Master heard it, he said, "Things that are done, it is needless to speak about; things that have had their course, it is needless to remonstrate about; things that are past, it is needless to Mame."

14

Book of Music

CHAPTER XXX. 1. The Master said, "Small indeed was the capacity of Recen Chung?"

 Some one said, 'Was Kean Chung parsimonious?' 'Kean,' was the reply, 'had the San Keen, and his officers performed no double duties; how can he be considered parsimonious?'

5. Then, did Kasan Chung know the rules of propriety? The Master said, 'The princes of States have a screen intercepting the view at their gates. Kasan had likewise a screen at his gate. The princes of States on any friendly meeting betaseen two of them, had a stand on which to place their inserted cups. Kasan had also such a stand. If Kasan knew the rules of propriety, who does not know them?"

CHAPTER XXXX. The Master instructing the grand music-master of Lu said, 'How to play music may be known. At the commancement of the piece, all the parts should sound together. As it proceeds, they should be in harmony while severally distinct and Roseing addhout break, and thus on to the conclusion.'

CHAPTER XEN. The border warden at Vi requested to be introduced to the Master, saying. When men of superior virtue have come to this, I have never been denied the privilege of seeing them.' The followers of the sage introduced him, and when he came out from the interview, he said, 'My Niends, why are you distressed by your master's loss of office?' The kingdom has long been without the principles of truth and right; Heaven is going to use your master as a bell with its wooden tongue.'

CHAPTER XEV. The Master said of the Shao that it was perfectly beautiful and also perfectly good. He said of the Wu that it was perfectly beautiful but not perfectly good. CHAPTER EFFE. The Master said, 'High station filled without indulgent generosity; commonies performed without reservence; mourning conducted without somos;- whereasth should I contemplate such ways?"

BOOK N. LE IN.

CRAPTER 1. The Master said, 'It is sittunus manners which constitute the excellence of a neighborhood. If a man in selecting a residence, do not fix on one where such prevail, how can be be wise?"

CHAPTER 8. The Master said, 'Those who are without virtue cannot abide long either in a condition of powerty and hardship, or in a condition of enjoyment. The virtuous red in virtue; the wise desire virtue.'

CHAPTER III. The Master said, 'It is only the (truly) virtuous man, who can love, or who can hate, others.'

CHAPTER N. The Master said, 'If the will be set on virtue, there will be no practice of wickedness.'

CHAPTER V. 1. The Master said, 'Riches and honours are what men desire. If it cannot be obtained in the proper way, they should not be held. Powerty and meanness are what men dislike. If it cannot be assided in the proper way, they should not be assided.

¥ a superior man abandon virtue, how can he fulfil the requirements of that name?

 The superior man does not, even for the space of a single meal, act contrary to virtue. In moments of haste, he cleases to it, in seasons of danger, he cleases to it."

CHAPTER VI. 1. The Master said, 'I have not seen a person who loved virtue, or one who hated what was not virtuinus. He who loved virtue, would esteem nothing above it. He who hated what is not virtuinus, would practise virtue in such a way that he would not allow anything that is not virtuinus to approach his person.

To any one able for one day to apply his strength to virtual? I have not seen the case in which his strength would be insufficient.

 Should there possibly be any such case, I have not seen it."

CHAPTER VII. The Master said, 'The faults of men are characteristic of the class to which they belong. By observing a man's faults, it may be known that he is virtums.'

CHAPTER VM. The Master said, 'If a man in the morning hear the right way, he may die in the evening without regret.'

CHAPTER IX. The Master said, 'A scholar, whose mind is set on truth, and who is ashamed of bad clothes and had food, is not fit to be discoursed with.'

CHAPTER X. The Master said, 'The superior man, in the world, does not set his mind either for anything, or against anything; what is right he will follow.'

Book of Music

CHAPTER EI. The Master said, 'The superior man thinks of virtue; the small man thinks of comfort. The superior man thinks of the sanctions of law; the small man thinks of favours which he may receive.'

CHAPTER IS. The Master said. 'He sho acts with a constant view to his own advantage will be much mammared against.'

CHAPTER KIR. The Master said, 'If a prince is able to govern his kingdom with the complaisance proper to the rules of propriety, what difficulty will be have? If he cannot govern it with that complaisance, what has he to do with the rules of propriety?

CHAPTER EN: The Master said, 'A man should say, I am not concerned that I have no place, I am concerned how I may fit myself for one. I am not concerned that I am not known, I seek to be worthy to be known.'

CHAPTER XX. 1. The Master said, 'Shan, my doctrine is that of an all-persoding unity.' The disciple Tsang replied, 'Yes.'

 The Master went out, and the other disciples asked, saying, 'What do his words mean?' Tsang said, 'The dischine of our master is to be true to the principles of our nature and the benexolent esercise of them to others,- this and nothing more.'

CHAPTER EM. The Master said, 'The mind of the superior man is conversant with righteousness; the mind of the mean man is conversant with gain.'

CHAPTER XMR. The Master said, 'When see see men of worth, see should think of equalling them; when see see men of a contrary character, we should turn inwards and examine ourselves."

CHAPTER EVER. The Master said, 'to serving his parents, a son may remonstrate with them, but gently, when he sees that they do not incline to follow his advice, he shows an increased degree of reservence, but does not abandon his purpose; and should they punish him, he does not allow himself to mamue.'

CHAPTER KIR. The Master said, 'While his parents are alise, the son may not go abroad to a distance. If he does go abroad, he must have a fixed place to which he goes.'

CHAPTER XX. The Master said, 'If the son for three years does not after from the way of his father, he may be called fillal.'

CHAPTER XE. The Master said, 'The years of parents may by no means not be kept in the memory, as an occasion at once for joy and for fear.'

CRAFTER XXX. The Master said, 'The reason why the ancients did not readily give ulterance to their words, was that they learned lest their actions should not come up to them.'

CHAPTER XXIII. The Master said, 'The cautious seldom an.'

CHAPTER XXN. The Master said, 'The superior man withen to be slow in his speech and earnest in his conduct.'

Book of Music

CHAPTER XEX. The Master said, 'Virtue is not left to stand alone. He who practises it will have neighbors.'

CNAPTER XXVI. Tuze-yu said, 'In serving a prince, frequent remonstrances lead to disgrace. Between friends, frequent reproofs make the friendship distant.'

BOOK 1. KUNG-11 CH'ANG.

CNAPTER 1. 1. The Master said of Kung-ye Ch'ang that he might be usined; although he was put in bonds, he had not been guilty of any crime. Accordingly, he gave him his cash daughter to usile.

 Of Nan Yung he said that if the country were well governed he would not be out of office, and if it were ill-governed, he would excape punishment and disprace. He gave him the daughter of his own elder brother to wells.

CHAPTER 8. The Master said of Tuze-chien, 'Of superior situat indeed is such a man! If there were not virtuous men in Lo, how could this man have acquired this character?

CHAPTER III. Tuze-kung asked, 'What do you say of me, Ts'ze?' The Master said, 'You are a utensil.' 'What utensil?' 'A gemmed sacrificial utensil.'

CHAPTER IV. 1. Some one said, 'Yung is truly virtuous, but he is not ready with his tongue.'

2. The Master said, What is the good of being ready with the tongue? They who encounter men with smartnesses of speech for the most part procure themselves hatred. I know not whether he be truly situous, but why should be show readiness of the tongue?

Confucius

CHAPTER V. The Master was wishing Ch'i-Gao K'ai to enter on official amployment. He replied, 'I am not yet able to rest in the assurance of THES.' The Master was pleased.

CHAPTER VI. The Master said, 'My doctrines make no way, I will get upon a raft, and float about on the sea. He that will accompany me will be Yu, I date say.' Tomlu heating this was glad, upon which the Master said, 'Yu is funder of dating than I am. He does not exercise his judgment upon matters.'

CHAPTER VII. 1. Mang Wu asked about Tuze-lu, whether he was perfectly virtuous. The Master said, 1 do not know."

 He asked again, when the Master replied, 'to a kingdom of a thousand chariots, Yu might be employed to manage the military levies, but I do not know whether he be perfectly virtuous.'

 'Red what do you say of Ch'lu?' The Master replied, 'In a city of a thousand families, or a clan of a hundred chariots, Ch'lu might be employed as governor, but I do not know whether he is perfectly virtuous.'

4. What do you say of Ch'Ih? The Master replied, 'With his sash girt and standing in a court, Ch'Ih might be employed to consense with the visitors and guests, but I do not know whether he is perfectly virtuous.'

CHAPTER VII. 1. The Master said to Tuze-kung, 'Which do you consider superior, yourself or Hui?'

 Taze-kung replied, 'How dare I compare myself with Hui? Hui hears one point and knows all about a subject; I hear one point, and know a second.'  The Master said, "You are not equal to him. I grant you, you are not equal to him."

CHAPTER IX. 1. Tuai Yu being asleep during the daptime, the Master said, Notten wood cannot be caned, a wall of dirty earth will not recaise the trossel. This Yul- what is the use of my reprosing him?

 The Master said, 'Ht first, my way with men was to hear their words, and give them credit for their conduct. Now my way is to hear their words, and look at their conduct. It is from Yu that I have learned to make this charge.'

CHAPTER X. The Master said, 'I have not seen a fem and unbending man.' Some one replied, 'There is Shan Ch'ang.' 'Ch'ang.' said the Master, 'is under the influence of his passions; how can be be pronounced fem and unbending?

CHAPTER XI. Tuze-kung said, 'What I do not wish mento-do to me, I also wish not to do to men.' The Master said, 'Ts'ze, you have not attained to that.'

CHAPTER ER. Tupe-kung said, 'The Master's personal displays of his principles and ordinary descriptions of them may be heard. His discourses about man's nature, and the way of Heaven, cannot be heard.'

CHAPTER XIR. When Tuze-Iu heard anything, if he had not yet succeeded in carrying it into practice, he was only ahaid lest he should hear something else.

CHAPTER EN: Tuze-kung asked, saying, 'On schat ground did Kung-wan get that title of Wan?' The Master said, 'He was of an active nature and yet fond of learning, and he was not ashamed to ask and learn of his inferiors?- On these grounds he has been styled War.'

Confucius

CHAPTER EX. The Master said of Tuze-ch'an that he had four of the characteristics of a superior man:- in his conduct of himself, he was humble; in sensing his superiors, he was respectful; in nourishing the people, he was kind, in ordering the people, he was just.'

CHAPTER EM. The Master said, 'ten P'ing knew well how to maintain friendly intercourse. The acquaintance might be long, but he showed the same respect as at first.'

CHAPTER EVE. The Master said, "Sung Wan kept a large tortoise in a house, on the capitals of the pillars of which he had hills made, and with representations of duckweed on the small pillars above the beams supporting the rafters.- Of what sort was his wisdom?

CHAPTER EVER. 1. Tran-chang asked, saying. The minister Tran- wan thrice took office, and manifested no jay in his countenance. Thrice he retired from office, and manifested no displeasure. He made it a point to inform the new minister of the way in which he had conducted the government,- what do you say of him? The Master replied. He was loyal. 'Was he perfectly virtuous?' 1 do not know. How can he be pronounced perfectly wituous?'

2. Tuze-chang proceeded, 'When the officer Ch'ui killed the prince of Ch'i, Ch'an Wan, though he was the owner of forty horses, abandoned them and left the country. Coming to another State, he said, "They are here like our great officer, Ch'ui," and left it. He came to a second State, and with the same observation left it also;- what do you say of him?" The Master replied, 'He was pure.' 'Was he perfectly virtuous?' 1 do not know. How can he be pronounced perfectly virtuous?'

CHAPTER EX. Chi Wan thought thrice, and then acted. When the Master was informed of it, he said, "fasice may do."

CHAPTER XX. The Master said, 'When good order prevailed in his country, Ning Wu acted the part of a wise man. When his country was in disorder, he acted the part of a stugid man. Others may equal his wisdom, but they cannot equal his stugidity.'

CHAPTER EEL When the Master was in Ch'an, he said, 'Lat me return! Lat me return! The little children of my school are ambitious and too hasty. They are accomplished and complete so far, but they do not know how to restrict and shape themselves.'

CHAPTER EXE. The Master said, 'Po-i and Shu-ch'i did not keep the former wickednesses of men in mind, and hence the resentments directed towards them were few.'

CHAPTER EXER. The Master said, 'Who says of Weishang Kao that he is upright? One begged some vinegar of him, and he begged it of a neighbor and gave it to the man.'

CHAPTER XXIV: The Master said, Yine words, an insinuating appearance, and excessive respect;-- Tao Or'so ming was ashamed of them, I also an ashamed of them. To conceal resentment against a person, and appear friendly with him;-- Tao Or'so ming was ashamed of such conduct. I also an ashamed of K' CHAPTER XEV. 1. Yen Yuan and Chi Lu being by his side, the Master said to them, 'Come, let each of you tell his wishes.'

 Toze-ku said, 1 should like, having chariots and horses, and light fur dresses, to share them with my friends, and though they should spoil them, I would not be displeased.

 Yen Yuan said, 'I should like not to boast of my excellence, nor to make a display of my meritorious deeds.'

4. Tuze-fu then said, 'I should like, six, to hear your wishes.' The Master said, 'They are, in regard to the aged, to give them rest; in regard to friends, to show them sincerity; in regard to the young, to treat them tenderly.'

CHAPTER XXM. The Master said, 'It is all over! I have not yet seen one who could perceive his faults, and meandly accuse himself."

CHAPTER XEVE. The Master said, 'in a hamlet of ten families, there may be found one honourable and sincere as I am, but not so fond of learning.'

BOOK VI. YUNG YEY.

CHAPTER 1. 1. The Master said, 'There is Yung!-- He might occupy the place of a prince.'

 Chung-kung asked about Tuze-sang Po-tuze. The Master said, 'He may pass. He does not mind small matters.'

3. Chang-kang said, ¥ a man cherish in himself a resenential backing of the necessity of attention to business, through he may be easy in small matters in his government of the people, that may be allowed. But if he charish in himself that easy belong, and also carry it out in his practice, is not such an easy mode of procedure excession?"

4. The Master said, 'Yang's words are right.'

CHAPTER 8. The Duke Ai asked which of the disciples lowed to learn. Confucius replied to him, "There was Yan Hui; HE lowed to learn. He did not transfer his anger; he did not repeat a fault. Unfortunately, his appointed time was short and he died; and now there is not such another. I have not yet heard of any one who lowes to learn as he did."

CHAPTER BL 1. Tuze-basa being employed on a mission to CN1, the disciple Zan requested grain for his mother. The Master said, 'Give her a fs.' Yen requested more. 'Give her at ys,' said the Master. Yen gave her five ping.

Confucius

 The Master said, 'When Or'h was proceeding to Or', he had fat horses to his carriage, and wore light furs. I have heard that a superior man helps the distressed, but does not add to the wealth of the rich.'

 Yuan Sze being made governor of his town by the Master, he gave him nine hundred measures of grain, but Sze declined them.

 The Master said, 'Do not decline them. May you not give them away in the neighborhoods, hamlets, towns, and villages?"

CHAPTER N: The Master, speaking of Chung-kung, said, 'If the call of a brindled cose be red and homed, although men may not with to use 8, would the spirits of the mountains and rivers put 8 aside?'

CHAPTER V. The Master said, 'Such was Hui that for three months there would be nothing in his mind contrary to perfect virtue. The others may attain to this on some days or in some months, but nothing more.'

CHAPTER VI. Chi K'ang asked about Chung-yu, whether he was fit to be employed as an officer of government. The Master said, 'Yu is a man of decision; what difficulty would be find in being an officer of government? K'ang asked, 'to Ts'ze fit to be employed as an officer of government?' and was answered, 'Ts'ze is a man of intelligence; what difficulty would be find in being an officer of government?' And to the same question about Ch'to the Master gave the same reply, saying. 'Ch'to is a man of various ability.'

CHAPTER VB. The chief of the Oxi family sent to ask Min Tsze-chilen to be governor of Pi. Min Tsze-chilen said, 'Decline the offer for me politely. If any one come again to me with a second invitation, I shall be obliged to go and lise on the banks of the Wan.' CHAPTER VIII. Po-rois being II, the Master went to ask for him. He took hold of his hand through the window, and said, 'It is killing him. It is the appointment of Heaven, alan! That such a man should have such a sickness! That such a man should have such a sickness! CHAPTER IX. The Master said, 'Admirable indeed was the situe of Huil' With a single bamboo dish of rice, a single gourd dish of drink, and living in his mean namour lans, while others could not have endured the distress, he did not allow his joy to be affected by it. Admirable indeed was the situe of Huil'

CHAPTER X. Yan Ch'lu said, 'It is not that I do not delight in your doctrines, but my strength is imadificient.' The Master said, 'Those whose strength is imadificient give over in the middle of the way but now you limit yourself.'

CHAPTER ID. The Master said to Tuze-Insia, 'Do you be a scholar after the style of the superior man, and not after that of the mean man.'

CHAPTER ER. Tuze-yu being governor of Wu-ch'ang, the Manter said to him, 'Have you got good men there?' He amsemed, 'There is Tan-Cai Mish-ming, who never in walking takes a short cut, and never comes to my office, ecopting on public business.'

CHAPTER XIB. The Master said, 'Mang Chih-fan does not boast of his merit. Being in the rear on an occasion of fight, when they were about to enter the gate, he whipped up his horse, saying. "It is not that I dane to be last. My honse would not advance."

Confucius

CHAPTER XIV. The Master said, 'Without the specious speech of the litanist I's and the beauty of the prince Onas of Sung, it is difficult to escape in the present age.'

CHAPTER XX. The Master said, 'Who can go out but by the door? How is it that men sell not walk according to these ways?

CHAPTER EM. The Master said, 'Where the solid qualities are in excess of accomplishments, see have naticity, where the accomplishments are in excess of the solid qualities, we have the manners of a clerk. When the accomplishments and solid qualities are equally blended, we then have the man of situat.'

CHAPTER XME. The Master said, 'Man is born for oprightness. If a man lose his oprightness, and yet lise, his escape from death is the effect of mere good fortune.'

CHAPTER XVIII. The Master said, 'They who know the truth are not equal to those who love it, and they who love it are not equal to those who delight in it.'

CHAPTER EX. The Master said, 'To those schose talents are above mediocrity, the highest subjects may be arensurced. To those scho are below mediocrity, the highest subjects may not be arensurced.'

CHAPTER EX. Fan Ch'lh asked what constituted windom. The Master said, 'To give one's self earnestly to the duties due to men, and, while respecting spiritual beings, to keep aloof from them, may be called windom.' He asked about perfect virtue. The Master said, 'The man of virtue makes the difficulty to be osercome his first business, and success only a subsequent consideration;- this may be called perfect virtue."

CHAPTER EXI. The Master said, 'The wise find pleasure in water; the sintuous find pleasure in hills. The wise are active; the sintuous are transpall. The wise are joyful; the sintuous are long-lised.'

CHAPTER XXE. The Master said, 'Ch', by one change, would come to the State of Lo. Lo. by one change, would come to a State where true principles predominated.'

CHAPTER XXIII. The Master said, 'A commend vessel without commen.- A strange commend vessel! A strange commend vessel?

CHAPTER XXIV. Tsai Wo asked, saying, 'A benevolent man, through it be told him, -- 'There is a man in the well' will go in after him, I suppose.' Confuction said, 'Why should he do so?' A superior man may be made to go to the well, but he cannot be made to go down into it. He may be imposed upon, but he cannot be fooled.'

CHAPTER XXV. The Master said, 'The superior man, extensionly studying all learning, and keeping himself under the restraint of the rules of propriety, may thus likewise not overstep what is right.'

CHAPTER EXH. The Master having visited Nan-tuse, Tuse-to wan displeased, on which the Master secon, saying, Wherein I have done improperly, may Heaven reject me, may Heaven reject me<sup>2</sup> CHAPTER XEMI. The Master said, 'Perfect is the virtue which is according to the Constant Mean' Rare for a long time has been its practise among the people.'

CHAPTER XXVIII. 1. Tute-hung said, "Suppose the case of a man extensionly conferring benefits on the people, and able to assist all, what would you say of him? Might he be called perfectly virtuous?" The Master said, 'Why speak only of virtue in connexion with him? Must he not have the qualities of a sage? Even Yao and Shun were still solicitous about this.

 Now the man of perfect virtue, wishing to be established himself, seeks also to establish others; wishing to be enlarged himself, he seeks also to enlarge others.

 To be able to judge of others by what is nigh in sumehees;-- this may be called the art of virtue."

BOOK VS. SHU R.

CHAPTER 1. The Master said, 'A transmitter and not a maker, believing in and lowing the ancients, I wenture to compare myself with our old P'ang.'

CHAPTER 8. The Master said, 'The silent treasuring up of knowledge; learning without satisfy; and instructing others without being wearied.- which one of these things belongs to me?

CHAPTER III. The Master said, 'The leaning virtue without proper cultivation; the not thoroughly documing what is learned, not being able to move towards righteousness of which a knowledge is gained, and not being able to change what is not good.- these are the things which occasion me solicitude.'

CHAPTER N. When the Master was unoccupied with business, his manner was easy, and he looked pleased.

CHAPTER V. The Master said, "Extreme is my decay. For a long time, I have not dreamed, as I was wort to do, that I saw the duke of Chau."

CHAPTER VI. 1. The Master said, 'Let the will be set on the path of duty.

Let every attainment in solut is good be firmly grasped.

3. 'Lat perfect virtue be accorded with.

 Lat relaxation and enjoyment be found in the polite arts.'

CHAPTER VB. The Master said, Youn the man bringing his bundle of dried flesh for my teaching upwards, I have never refused instruction to any one."

CHAPTER VIE. The Master said, 1 do not open up the truth to one who is not eager to get knowledge, nor help out any one who is not annious to explain himself. When I have presented one corner of a subject to any one, and he cannot from it learn the other three, I do not repeat my lesson."

CHAPTER IX. 1. When the Master was eating by the side of a mourner, he never ate to the full.

He did not sing on the same day in which he had been seeping.

CHAPTER X. 1. The Master said to Yen Yuan, 'When called to office, to undertake its duties; when not so called, to lie retired;- it is only I and you who have attained to this.'

Tuze-lu said, 'If you had the conduct of the armies of a great State, whom would you have to act with you?"

 The Master said, 'I would not have him to act with me, who will unarmed attack a tiger, or cross a river without a boat, dying without any reget. My associate must be the man who proceeds to action hall of solicitude, who is fund of adjusting his plans, and then carries them into execution.'

Book of Music

CHAPTER EI. The Master said, 'If the search for riches is sure to be successful, though I should become a groom with whip in hand to get them, I will do so. As the search may not be successful, I will follow after that which I low.'

CHAPTER X8. The things in reference to which the Master exercised the greatest caution were – fasting, war, and sickness.

CHAPTER KIR. When the Master was in Ch's heard the Shan, and for three months did not know the taste of flesh. 1 did not think" he said, that music could have been made so excellent as this."

CHAPTER XIV. 1. Yen Yu said, 'Is our Master for the ruler of Wei?' Tuze-kung said, 'Oh' I will ask him.'

2. He seeret in accordingly, and said, 'What sort of menseere Po-i and Shu-ch'?' They were ancient worthies,' said the Master. 'Did they have any repirings because of their course?' The Master again replied, 'They sought to act virturously, and they did so; what was there for them to repire about?' On this, Tuze-kung went out and said, 'Our Master is not for him.'

CNAPTER EX: The Master said, With coarse rice to eat, with water to drink, and my bended arm for a pillow;-1 have still joy in the midst of these things. Riches and homours acquired by unrighteousness, are to me as a floating cloud.

CHAPTER EM. The Master said, 'If some years seene added to my life, I would give fifty to the study of the Vi, and then I might come to be without great faults.'

Confucius

CHAPTER XWE The Master's frequent themes of discourse were-- the Odes, the History, and the maintenance of the Rules of Propriety. On all these he frequently discoursed.

CHAPTER XMM. 1. The Duke of Sheh asked Tsze-ke about Confucius, and Tsze-ke did not answer him.

 The Master said, 'Why did you not say to him,-- He is simply a man, who in his sugger pursuit (of knowledge) forgets his food, who in the joy of its attainment forgets his someway, and who does not perceive that old age is coming on?"

CHAPTER KIX. The Master said, 'I am not one who was born in the possession of knowledge; I am one who is fund of antiquity, and earnest in seeking it there.'

CHAPTER XX. The subjects on which the Master did not talk, seem- estraordinary things, feats of strength, disorder, and spiritual beings.

CHAPTER XEI. The Master said, 'When I walk along with two others, they may sense me as my teachers. I will select their good qualities and follow them, their bad qualities and assid them.'

CHAPTER XXX. The Master said, 'Heaven produced the virtue that is in me. Hean T'ui- what can be do to me?'

CHAPTER XXIII. The Master said, 'Do you think, my disciples, that I have any concealments?' I conceal nothing from you. There is nothing which I do that is not shown to you, my disciples;-- that is my way.' CHAPTER XXIV. There were four things which the Master taught,- letters, ethics, devotion of soul, and truthulness.

CHAPTER EEV. 1. The Master said, 'A sage it is not mine to see; could I see a man of real talent and virtue, that would satisfy me.'

The Master said, 'A good man it is not mine to see; could I see a man possessed of constancy, that would satisfy me.

 Having not and yet affecting to have, empty and yet affecting to be full, straitened and yet affecting to be at ease:- it is difficult with such characteristics to have constancy.

CHAPTER XENT. The Master angled, -- but did not use a nat. He shot, -- but not at birds perching.

CHAPTER XEVE. The Master said, 'There may be those who act without knowing why. I do not do so. Hearing much and selecting what is good and fullowing it; seeing much and keeping it in memory:- this is the second style of knowledge.'

CHAPTER XEVEN. 1. It was difficult to talk (profitably and reputably) with the people of Hu-Insiang, and a lad of that place having had an interview with the Master, the disciples doubted.

2. The Master said, 1 admit people's approach to me without committing myself as to what they may do when they have retired. Why must one be so severe? If a man purify himself to wait upon me, I receive him so purified, without guaranteeing his past conduct.<sup>1</sup>

Confucius

CHAPTER XXIX. The Master said, 'ts virtue a thing remote? I wish to be virtuous, and lo? virtue is at hand."

CHAPTER XXX. 1. The minister of crime of Or'an asked whether the duke Chao knew propriety, and Confucius said, 'He knew propriety.'

2. Confluction having retired, the minister bossed to Wuma Ch'i to come forecard, and said, 'I have beard that the superior man is not a partisan. May the superior man be a partisan also? The prince married a daughter of the house of Wu, of the same sumare with himself, and called her,- "The elder Tuze of Wu," If the prince knew propriety, who does not know E?"

 Wu-ma Ch'i reported these remarks, and the Master said, 'I am fortunate! If I have any errors, people are sure to know them.'

CHAPTER XXEL When the Master was in company with a person who was singing, if he sang well, he would make him repeat the song, while he accompanied it with his cam voice.

CHAPTER XXXXI. The Master said, 'to letters I am perhaps equal to other men, but the character of the superior man, camping out in his conduct what he professes, is what I have not yet attained to.'

CHAPTER EXEM. The Master said, The sage and the man of perfect sittue; -- how dare I cank myself with them? It may simply be said of me, that I strike to become such without satisfy, and teach others without separitrees.' Kang-hui Hea said, 'This is just what see, the disciples, cannot imitate you in.'

CHAPTER XXXIN: The Master being very sick, Tsze-lu asked leave to pray for him. He said, 'May such a thing be done?" Tupe-tu replied, 'R may, in the Eulogies it is said, "Prayer has been made for these to the spirits of the upper and losser worlds." The Master said, 'My praying has been for a long time."

CHAPTER XXEN: The Master said, "Extravogance leads to insubordination, and parsimony to meanness. It is better to be mean than to be insubordinate."

CHAPTER XXENT. The Master said, 'The superior man is satisfied and composed; the mean man is always full of distress.'

CNAPTER XXXVIII. The Master was mild, and yet dignified; majestic, and yet not fierce; respectful, and yet earsy.

BOOK VIII, T'AI-PO.

CNAPTER 1. The Master said, 'Tai-po may be said to have reached the highest point of virtuous action. Theice he declined the kingdom, and the people in ignorance of his motives could not express their approbation of his conduct.'

CNAPTER 8. 1. The Master said, 'Respectfulness, without the rules of propriety, becomes laborious bustle; carefulness, without the rules of propriety, becomes timidity; boldness, without the rules of propriety, becomes insubordination; straightforearchess, without the rules of propriety, becomes ruleness.

 When those who are in high stations perform well all their duties to their relations, the people are aroused to vistue. When old hierds are not neglected by them, the people are presented from meanness.<sup>2</sup>

CHAPTER III. The philosopher Tsang being iil, he called to him the disciples of his school, and said, Uncover my feet, uncover my hands. It is said in the Book of Postty, "We should be apprehensive and cautious, as if on the brink of a deep golf, as if treading on thin ics," and so have 1 been. Now and hereafter, 1 know my escape from all injury to my person, O ye, my little children."

Confucius

CHAPTER N. 1. The philosopher Tsang being ill, Meng Chang went to ask how he was.

Tsang said to him, 'When a bird is about to die, its notes are mountful; when a man is about to die, his words are good.

3. There are three principles of conduct which the man of high rank should consider specially important:- that in his deportment and manner he keep from violence and heedlessness; that in regulating his countenance he keep near to sincerity; and that in his words and tones he keep far from loseness and impropriety. As to such matters as attending to the sacrificial vessels, there are the proper officers for them.'

CHAPTER V. The philosopher Tsang said, 'Cifled with ability, and yet putting questions to those who were not to; prosessed of much, and yet putting questions to those prosessed of little; having, as though he had not; hul, and yet counting himself as empty; offended against, and yet entering into no altercation; formerly i had a friend who pursued this style of conduct.'

CHAPTER VI. The philosopher Tsang said, "Suppose that there is an individual who can be entrusted with the charge of a young orphan prince, and can be commissioned with authority over a state of a hundred 5, and whom no emergency however great can drive from his principles:-- is such a man a superior man? He is a superior man indeed."

CHAPTER VB. 1. The philosopher Tsang said, 'The officer may not be without breadth of mind and vigorous endurance. His burden is heavy and his course is long.

 Perfect virtue is the burden which he considers it is his to sustain;
– is it not heavy? Only with death does his course stop;
– is it not long? CHAPTER VIII. 1. The Manter said, 'It is by the Odes that the mind is arouned.

It is by the Rules of Propriety that the character is established.

3. It is from Music that the finish is received."

CHAPTER IX. The Manter said, 'The people may be made to follow a path of action, but they may not be made to understand it.'

CHAPTER X. The Master said, 'The man who is fond of daring and is dissatisfied with powerty, will proceed to insubordination. So will the man who is not virtume, when you carry your dislike of him to an extreme.'

CHAPTER EL The Master said, 'Though a man have abilities as admirable as those of the Duke of Chau, yet if he be proud and niggardh, those other things are really not worth being looked at.'

CHAPTER NR. The Master said, 'It is not easy to find a man who has learned for three years without coming to be good.'

CNAPTER XIR. 1. The Master said, With sincere faith he unites the love of learning; holding firm to death, he is perfecting the excellence of his course.

 Such an one will not onter a tottening State, nor desell in a disorganized one. When right principles of government prevail in the kingdom, he will show himself, when they are prostrated, he will keep concessind.

 When a country is well-governed, poverty and a mean condition are things to be ashamed of. When a country is 8-governed, riches and honour are things to be ashamed of."

Confucius

CHAPTER XIV. The Master said, 'He who is not in any particular office, has nothing to do with plans for the administration of its duties.'

CHAPTER EV. The Master said, 'When the music master Chih first entered on his office, the finish of the Kean Tsu was magnificant;- how it filled the ears?

CHAPTER EM. The Master said, 'Ardent and yet not upright; stupid and yet not attentive; simple and yet not sincare:- such persons I do not understand.'

CHAPTER EVE. The Manter said, 'Learn as if you could not reach your object, and were always fearing also lest you should lose it.'

CHAPTER KHE. The Master said, 'How majestic was the manner in which Shun and Yu held possession of the empire, as if it were nothing to them?'

CHAPTER EX. 1. The Master said, 'Creat indeed was Yao as a scoreniged How majestic was hell it is only Heaven that is grand, and only Yao corresponded to it. How sett was his sittue! The people could find no name for it.

How majoritic was he in the works which he accomplished! How glorious in the elegant regulations which he instituted?

CHAPTER XX. 1. Shun had five ministen, and the empire was well-governed. 2. King Wu said, 'I have ten able ministers.'

 Confluction said, 'to not the saying that talents are difficult to find, true? Only when the dynasties of I'ang and Yu met, were they more abundant than in this of Oses, yet there was a woman among them. The able miniates were no more than nine men.

4. King Wan prosessed two of the three parts of the empire, and with those he served the dynasty of Yin. The virtue of the house of Chau may be said to have reached the highest point indeed."

CHAPTER EEI. The Master said, 'I can find no flaw in the character of Yu. He used himself coarse food and drink, but displayed the utmost filial piety towards the spirits. His ordinary gaments were poor, but he displayed the utmost elegance in his sacrificial cap and agron. He lived in a low mean house, but expended all his strength on the ditches and water-channels. I can find nothing like a flaw in Yu.'

BOOK IS, TSZE HAN,

CHAPTER 1. The subjects of which the Master seldom spoke were- profitableness, and also the appointments of Heaven, and perfect situe.

CHAPTER B. 1. A man of the village of Ta-Insiang said. 'Great indexed is the philosopher K'ung! His learning is extension, and yet he does not render his name famous by any particular thing.'

 The Master heard the observation, and said to his disciples, 'What shall I practise? Shall I practise charioteering, or shall I practise archery? I will practise charioteering.'

CRAFTER III. 1. The Master said, 'The linen cap is that prescribed by the rules of ceremony, but now a silk one is seen. It is economical, and I follow the common practice.

 The rules of carentumy prescribe the bossing before the hall, but now the practice is to bose only after ascending it. That is arrogant. I continue to bose before the hall, though I oppose the common practice.<sup>1</sup>

CHAPTER N. There were four things from which the Master was entirely free. He had no foregone conclusions, no arbitrary predeterminations, no obstinacy, and no egoism.

Book of Music

CHAPTER V. 1. The Master was put in fear in K'wang.

He said, 'After the death of King Wan, was not the cause of truth lodged here in me?

 W Heaven had wished to let this cause of truth perish, then L a future montal, should not have got such a relation to that cause. While Heaven does not let the cause of truth perish, what can the people of K'ssang do to me?<sup>2</sup>

CHAPTER VI. 1. A high officer asked Tsze-kung, saying, 'May we not say that your Master is a sage? How various is his ability?

 Tuze-kung said, 'Certainly Heaven has endowed him unlimitedly. He is about a sage. And, moreover, his ability is various.'

3. The Master heard of the conservation and said, 'Does the high officer know me?' When I was young, my condition was low, and therefore I acquired my ability in many things, but they were mean matters, Must the superior man have such variety of ability? He does not need variety of ability.'

 Lao said, 'The Master said, 'Having no official employment, I acquired many arts."

CHAPTER VIII. The Master said, 'Am I indeed possessed of knowledge?' I am not knowing. But if a mean person, who appears quite empty-like, ask anything of me. I set it furth from one end to the other, and exhaust it.'

CHAPTER VM. The Master said, 'The FANG bird does not come; the river sends forth no map:- it is all over with me<sup>2</sup> CHAPTER IS. When the Master saw a person in a mounting dress, or any one with the cap and capper and lower gaments of full dress, or a blind person, on observing them approaching. Brough they were promper than himself, he would rise up, and if he had to pass by them, he would do so hastly.

CHAPTER X. 1. Yen Yuan, in admiration of the Master's doctrines, sighed and said, 'I looked up to them, and they assemed to become more high; I tried to penetrate them, and they seemed to become more firm; I looked at them before me, and suddenly they seemed to be behind.

The Master, by orderly method, skillully leads men on. He enlarged my mind with learning, and taught me the restraints of propriety.

 When I wish to give over the study of his doctrines, I cannot do so, and having evented all my ability, there seems something to stand right up before me; but though I wish to follow and lay hold of R, I really find no way to do so."

CHAPTER 80. 1. The Master being very ill, Tsze-lu wished the disciples to act as miniaters to him.

 During a remission of his illness, he said, 'Long has the conduct of Yu been decaitful! By pretending to have ministers when I have them not, whom should I impose upon? Should I impose upon Heaven?

 Worecover, than that I should die in the hands of miniaters, is it not better that I should die in the hands of you, my disciples? And though I may not get a great burial, shall I die upon the road?"

CHAPTER XM. Tuze-kung said, 'There is a beautiful gem here. Should I lay it up in a case and keep it? or should I seek for a good price and sell it? The Master said, 'Sell it? Sell it? But I would wait for one to offer the price.'

Book of Music

CHAPTER XM. 1. The Master was wishing to go and live among the nine wild tribes of the east.

 Some one said, 'They are rude. How can you do such a thing?' The Master said, 'If a superior man deet among them, what rudeness would there be?'

CHAPTER EN. The Master said, 1 seturned from Wei to Lu, and then the music was reformed, and the pieces in the Royal songs and Praise songs all found their proper places.

CRAFTER EV. The Master said, 'Abroad, to sense the high ministers and nobles; at home, to sense one's father and elder brothers; in all duties to the dead, not to dare not to easet one's safe, and not to be overcome of seine;-- which one of these things do I attain to?

CHAPTER XM. The Master standing by a stream, said, 'R passes on just like this, not ceasing day or night?

CHAPTER EVA. The Master said, 'I have not seen one who loves virtue as he loves beauty.'

CHAPTER EVEN. The Master said, 'The prosecution of learning may be compared to what may happen in raising a mound. If there want but one basket of earth to complete the work, and I stop, the stopping is my own work. It may be compared to throwing down the earth on the level ground. Though but one basketful is thrown at a time, the advancing with it is my own going forward.'

CHAPTER XIX. The Master said, 'Sever flagging when i set forth anything to him;-- ah! that is Hus.' CHAPTER XX. The Master said of Yen Yuan, 'Alasi' I sater his constant advance. I never sate him stop in his progress.'

CRAPTER XXI. The Master said, 'There are cases in which the blade springs, but the plant does not go on to ficaser! There are cases where it ficasers, but no built is subsequently produced?

CHAPTER XXX. The Master said, 'A youth is to be regarded with respect. How do see know that his future will not be equal to our present? If he reach the age of forty or 50%, and has not made himself heard of, then indeed he will not be worth being regarded with respect.'

CRAFTER XEV. The Master said, 'Can men refuse to assent to the words of strict admonition? But it is reforming the conduct because of them which is valuable. Can men refuse to be pleased with words of gentle adhics? But it is unfolding their aim which is valuable. If a man be pleased with these words, but does not unfold their aim, and assents to those, but does not unfold their aim, and assents to those, but does not refuse his conduct, I can really do nothing with him.'

CHAPTER XXN: The Master said, 'Hold faithfulness and sincarity as first principles. Have no friends not equal to yourself. When you have faults, do not lear to abandon them.'

CHAPTER XEX. The Master said, 'The commander of the forces of a large state may be carried off, but the will of even a common man cannot be taken from him,' CHAPTER XEV. 1. The Master said, 'Dressed himself in a tattered robe quilted with hemp, yet standing by the side of men dressed in furs, and not ashamed;- ahl it is Yu who is equal to this?

"He dialikes none, he covets nothing:- what can be do but what is good"

 Type-to kept continually repeating these words of the ode, when the Master said, "those things are by no means sufficient to constitute (perfect) escalamos."

CHAPTER XEVE. The Master said, 'When the year becomes cold, then we know how the pine and the cypress are the last to lose their leaves.

CHAPTER EEVER. The Master said, 'The wise are free from perplexities; the virtuous from anxiety; and the bold from fear.'

CHAPTER XXIX. The Master said, 'There are some with whom we may study in common, but we shall find them unable to go along with us to principles. Perhaps we may go on with them to principles, but we shall find them unable to get established in those along with us. Or if we may get so established along with them, we shall find them unable to weigh occurring events along with us.'

CHAPTER XXX. 1. How the flowers of the aspen-plant flutter and turn? Do I not think of you? But your house is distant.

 The Master said, 'it is the want of thought about it. How is it distant?

BOOK 3. HEANG TANG.

CHAPTER 1. 1. Conflucture, in his utiliage, looked simple and sincare, and as if he were not able to speak.

When he was in the prince's ancestorial temple, or in the court, he spoke minutely on every point, but cautiously.

CHAPTER 8. 1. When he was waiting at court, in speaking with the great officers of the losser grade, he spake heeds, but in a straightforward manner; in speaking with those of the higher grade, he did so blandly, but precisely.

When the ruler was present, his manner displayed respectful uneasiness; it was grave, but self-possessed.

CHAPTER III. 1. When the prince called him to employ him in the reception of a visitor, his countemance appeared to change, and his legs to move forward with difficulty.

 He inclined himself to the other officers among ashom he stood, moving his left or right arm, as their position required, but keeping the skirts of his robe before and behind evenly adjusted.

3. He hastened forward, with his arms like the wings of a bird.

Confucius

 When the guest had retired, he would report to the prince, 'The visitor is not turning round any more.'

CHAPTER N. 1. When he entered the palace gate, he seemed to bend his body, as if it were not sufficient to admit him.

When he was standing, he did not occupy the middle of the gate-way: when he passed in or out, he did not tread upon the threshold.

 When he was passing the vacant place of the prince, his countemance appeared to change, and his legs to bend under him, and his words came as if he hardly had breath to utter them.

4. He ascanded the recaption hall, holding up his robe with both his hands, and his body bent; holding in his breath also, as if he dared not breathe.

5. When he came out from the audience, as soon as he had descended one step, he began to relax his countenance, and had a satisfied look. When he had got to the bottom of the steps, he advanced rapidly to his place, with his arms like wings, and on occupying it, his marrier still showed respectful uneasiness.

CHAPTER ¥ 1. When he was carrying the scepter of his rules, he seemed to bend his body, as if he were not able to hear its weight. He did not hold it higher than the position of the hands in making a boss, nor losser than their position in giving anything to another. His countenance seemed to change, and look apportensive, and he dragged his feet along as if they were held by something to the ground.

In presenting the presents with which he was charged, he wore a placid appearance.

3. At his private audience, he looked highly pleased.

CHAPTER VI. 1. The superior man did not use a deep purple, or a puce colour, in the ornaments of his dress.

Even in his undress, he did not wear anything of a red or reddlah colour.

 In search senather, he had a single garment either of coarse or fine testure, but he wore it displayed over an inner garment.

 Over lamb's fur he wore a garment of black; over faunt's fur one of white; and over fox's fur one of yellow.

The fur robe of his undress was long, with the right sleave short.

He required his sleeping dress to be half as long again as his body.

When staying at home, he used thick furs of the fox or the badger.

 When he put off mourning, he wore all the appendages of the girdle.

 His under-garment, except when it was required to be of the curtain shape, was made of silk cut narrow above and wide below.

10. He did not seear lamb's fur or a black cap, on a visit of condolence.

 On the first day of the month he put on his court robes, and presented himself at court.

CHAPTER VII. 1. When fasting, he thought it necessary to have his clothes brightly clean and made of linen cloth.

When fasting, he thought it necessary to change his food, and also to change the place where he commonly sat in the apartment.

Confucius

CHAPTER VIE. 1. He did not dollke to have his rice finely cleaned, nor to have his minced meat cut quite small.

 He did not eat rice which had been injured by heat or damp and turned sour, nor fish or flesh which was gone. He did not eat what was discoloured, or what was of a hed flavour, nor anything which was ill-cooked, or was not in season.

 He did not eat meat which was not cut properly, nor what was served without its proper sauce.

4. Through there might be a large quantity of meat, he would not allow what he took to exceed the due proportion for the rice. It was only in wine that he laid down no limit for himself, but he did not allow himself to be confused by it.

 He did not partake of wine and dried meat bought in the market.

6. He was never without ginger when he ate.

7. He did not eat much.

8. When he had been assisting at the prince's sacrifice, he did not keep the flesh which he received overnight. The flesh of his family sacrifice he did not keep over three days. If kept over three days, people could not eat it.

 When eating, he did not converse. When in bed, he did not speak.

 Although his food might be coarse rice and segatable scup, he would offer a little of it in sacrifice with a grave, respectful air.

CHAPTER IX. If his mat was not straight, he did not sit on it. CHAPTER X. 1. When the villagers were drinking together, on those who carried staffs going out, he went out immediately after.

When the ullagers were going through their commonies to drive away pestilential influences, he put on his court robes and stood on the eastern steps.

CHAPTER EL 1. When he was sending complementary inquiries to any one in another State, he bossed twice as he escorted the messenger away.

 Chi K'ang having sent him a present of physic, he bowed and received it, saying, 'I do not know it. I dare not taske it.'

CHAPTER XX. The stable being burned down, when he was at court, on his return he said, 'Has any man been hunt?' He did not ask about the honses.

CHAPTER XML 1. When the prince sent him a gift of cooked meat, he would adjust his mat, first taske it, and then give it away to others. When the prince sent him a gift of undersaed meat, he would have it cooked, and offer it to the spirits of his ancestors. When the prince sent him a gift of a heing animal, he would keep it also.

When he was in attendance on the prince and joining in the entertainment, the prince only sacrificed. He first fasted everything.

 When he was ill and the prince came to visit him, he had his head to the east, made his court robes be spread over him, and drese his girdle across them.

 When the prince's order called him, without waiting for his carriage to be yoked, he went at once.

CHAPTER XIV. When he entered the ancestral temple of the State, he asked about everything.

Confucius

CHAPTER EX. 1. When any of his friends died, if he had no relations who could be depended on for the necessary offices, he would say, 1 will bury him."

When a hierd sent him a present, though it might be a carriage and horses, he did not bow.

 The only present for which he bowed was that of the flesh of sacrifice.

CHAPTER XM. 1. In bed, he did not lie like a corpse. At home, he did not put on any formal deportment.

2. When he saw any one is a mounting dress, though it might be an acquaintance, he would change countenance; when he saw any one assaring the cap of full dress, or a blind person, though he might be in his undress, he would salute them in a ceremonious manner.

To any person in mounting he bound forward to the crossbar of his carriage; he bound in the same way to any one bearing the tables of population.

 When he was at an entertainment where there was an abundance of provisions set before him, he would change counternance and rise up.

On a sudden clap of thunder, or a violent wind, he would change countenance.

CHAPTER XVII. 1. When he was about to mount his carriage, he would stand straight, holding the cord.

When he was in the carriage, he did not turn his head quite round, he did not talk hastily, he did not point with his hands.

CHAPTER XVIII. 1. Seeing the countenance, it instantly rises. It files round, and by and by settles.  The Master said, "There is the hen-pheasant on the hill bridge. At its season? At its season?" Tupe-tu made a motion to it. Thrice it smalt him and then rose.

BOOK EL HS/EN TSIN.

CHAPTER 1.1. The Master said, 'The men of former times, in the matters of coremonies and music were rustics, it is said, while the men of these latter times, in coremonies and music, are accomplished gentlemen.

¥1 have occasion to use those things, 1 follow the men of former times.'

CNAPTER 8. 1. The Master said, 'Of those who were with me in Ch'an and Ts'ai, there are none to be found to enter my door.'

 Distinguished for their virtuous principles and practice, there were Yes Yuan, Min Tuze-ch'len, Zan Ponia, and Chung-kung; for their ability in speech, Tsai Wo and Tuze-kung; for their adminis- tratise talents, Zan Yu and Chi Lu; for their literary acquirements, Tuze-yu and Tuze-hsia.

CNAPTER III. The Master said, 'Hui gives me no assistance. There is nothing that I say in which he does not delight.'

CHAPTER N. The Master said, 'Hial indeed is Min Tszech'ien! Other people say nothing of him different from the report of his parents and brothers.'

Confucius

CHAPTER V. Nan Yung was frequently repeating the lines about a white scepter stone. Confucius gave him the daughter of his elder brother to selfe.

CRAFTER VI. Chi K'ang asked which of the disciples lowed to learn. Confucius replied to him, 'There was Yen Hui; he lowed to learn. Unfortunately his appointed time was short, and he died. Now there is no one who lowes to learn, as he did.'

CHAPTER VIE. 1. When Yan Yuan died, Yen Lu begged the carriage of the Master to sell and get an outer shell for his son's caffin.

2. The Master said, "Every one calls his son his son, aduther he has talents or has not talents. There was U; when he died, he had a colfin but no outer shell. I would not walk on foot to get a shell for him, because, having followed in the near of the great officers, it was not proper that I should walk on foot."

CHAPTER VIII. When Yes Yuan died, the Master said, 'Kau' Heaven is destroying me! Heaven is destroying me!'

CHAPTER IX. 1. When Yes Yuan died, the Master bescaled him exceedingly, and the disciples who were with him said, 'Master, your grief is excessive?'

2. 'ts it excessive?' said he.

W i am not to mourn bitterly for this man, for whom should i mourn?

CHAPTER X. 1. When Yan Yuan ded, the disciples withed to give him a great funeral, and the Master said, 'You may not do so.'

2. The disciples did bury him in great style.

 The Master said, 'Hui behaved towards me as his father. I have not been able to treat him as my son. The fault is not mine; it belongs to you, O disciples.'

CHAPTER EI. Chi Lu asked about serving the spirits of the dead. The Master said, 'While you are not able to serve men, how can you serve their spirits?' Chi Lu added, 'I venture to ask about death?' He was amsemed, 'While you do not know life, how can you know about death?'

CHAPTER ER. 1. The disciple Min was standing by his side, looking bland and precise; Taze-ks, looking bold and soldierly; Zan Yu and Taze-kung, with a free and straightforward manner. The Master was pleased.

2. He said, 'Hu, there!- he will not die a natural death.'

CHAPTER XIR. 1. Some parties in Lu were going to take down and rebuild the Long Treasury.

 Min Tsze-ch'len said, 'Suppose it were to be repaired after its old style;-- why must it be aftered and made areas?

 The Mester said, 'This man seldom speaks; when he does, he is sure to hit the point.'

CHAPTER XIV. 1. The Master said, 'What has the late of Yu to do in my door?'

The other disciples began not to respect Tuze-Io. The Master said, "Fu has ascended to the hall, though he has not yet passed into the inner apartments."

CHAPTER XX. 1. Tuze-kung asked which of the two, Shih or Shang, was the superior. The Master said, 'Shih goes beyond the due mean, and Shang does not come up to R'

Confucius

Then,' said Tsze-kung, 'the superiority is with Shih, I suppose.'

 The Master said, 'To go beyond is as serong as to fall short.'

CRAFTER XVI. 1. The head of the Chi family was richer than the duke of Chau had been, and yet Ch'iu collected his imposts for him, and increased his wealth.

The Master said, 'He is no disciple of mine. My little children, beat the drum and assail him.'

CHAPTER XVII. 1. Of al is simple.

2. Shan is dull.

3. Shih is specious.

4. Yu is coarse.

CHAPTER HMR. 1. The Master said, 'There is Huil He has rearly attained to perfect virtue. He is often in want.

To'se does not acquience in the appointments of Heaven, and his goods are increased by him. Yet his judgments are offen correct."

CHAPTER XIX. Tuze-chang asked what were the characteristics of the GOOD man. The Master said, 'He does not tread in the footsteps of others, but moreower, he does not enter the chamber of the sage.'

CHAPTER EX. The Master said, 'E because a man's discourse appears solid and sincere, we allow him to be a good man, is he really a superior man? or is his gravity only in appearance?

Book of Music

CHAPTER XXI. Tuze-Iu asked whether he should immediately carry into practice what he heard. The Master said. There are your father and elder brothers to be consulted -- why should you act on that principle of immediately canying into practice what you hear? Ian Ys asked the same, whether he should immediately carry into practice what he heard, and the Master answered, 'enmediately carry into practice what you hear.' Kung hui Hea said, 'Yu asked whether he should carry immediately into practice what he heard, and you said. "There are your father and older brothers to be consulted." Offic asked whether he should immediately carry into practice what he heard, and you said, "Carry it immediately into practica." L Ch'B, an perplesed, and senture to ask you for an explanation." The Master said. 'Ch'lu is retiring and slow: therefore, I urged him Romand. Yu has more than his own share of energy: therefore I kept him back."

CHAPTER XXX. The Master was put in fear in Cwarg and Yan Yuan fell behind. The Master, on his rejaining him, said, 1 throught you had deed.' Hui replied, 'While you were alive, how should I presume to dec?'

CHAPTER XXIR. 1. On Tuze-zan asked whether Chung Yu and Zan Ol'lu could be called great ministers.

 The Master said, 'I thought you would ask about some estraordinary individuals, and you only ask about Yu and Orlu!

 What is called a great minister, is one who serves his prince according to what is right, and when he finds he cannot do so, retires.

 Now, as to Yu and Ch'su, they may be called ordinary miniaters."

5. Toto-can said, 'Then they will always follow their chief;- will they?'

Confucius

The Master said, 'm an act of particide or regicide, they would not follow him.'

CHAPTER XXN. 1. Tuze-lu got Tuze-kao appointed governor of Pl.

2. The Master said, 'You are injuring a man's son.'

 Tuze-lu said, "There are (there) common people and officers; there are the altars of the spirits of the land and grain. Why must one read books before he can be considered to have learned?"

 The Master said, 'it is on this account that I hate your glib-tongued people.'

CHAPTER XXX. 1. Tsze-ks, Tsang Hsi, Zan Yu, and Kunghsi Hasa seere sitting by the Manter.

He said to them, "Though I am a day or so older than you, do not think of that.

 Trom day to day you are saying, "We are not known." If some ruler were to know you, what would you like to do?

4. Type-to hantily and lightly replied, "suppose the case of a State of ten thousand charicity; let it be straitened between other large States; let it be suffering from insuding armies; and to this let there be added a famine in com and in all vegetables: -- #1 seere intrusted with the government of 8, in three years' time 1 could make the people to be bold, and to recognise the rules of righterous conduct." The Master unded at him.

5. Summing to Yen Yu, he said, 'Orlis, what are your withes?' Orlu replied, 'Suppose a state of sidy or sevently 3 square, or one of BBy or side, and let me have the government of it,- in three years' time, I could make plenty to abound among the people. As to teaching them the principles of propriety, and music, I must walt for the rise of a superior man to do that.'

6. What are your withen, Clift,' said the Manter next to Kung-Ini Hasa. Clift: replied, 'I do not say that my ability extends to these things, but I should wish to learn them. At the services of the ancestral temple, and at the audiences of the princes with the scenerign, I should like, dressed in the dark square-made roles and the black linen cap, to act as a small assistant.'

7. Last of all, the Master asked Tsang Hui, 'Tien, what are your wishes?' Tien, pauning as he was playing on his lute, while it was yet twanging, laid the instrument aside, and rose. 'My wishes,' he said, 'are different from the cherished purposes of these three gentlemen.' 'What harm is there in that?' said the Mester, 'do you also, as well as they, speak out your wishes.' Tien then said, 'to this, the last month of spring, with the dress of the season all complete, along with five or sis young men who have assumed the cap, and sis or seven boys, I acculd wash in the L enjoy the breeze among the rain alters, and return home singing.' The Master heaved a sigh and said, 'I give my approval to Tien.'

8. The three others having gone out, Tsang Hui remained behind, and said, 'What do you think of the words of these three hierds?' The Master replied, 'They simply told each one his withes.'

9. Hsi pursued, 'Master, why did you umile at Yu?'

10. He was amseered, 'The management of a State demands the rules of propriety. His words were not humble; therefore I uniled at him.'

11. Hti again said, 'But was it not a State which Ch's proposed for himself?' The reply was, 'Yes; did you ever see a territory of sisty or seventy 5 or one of 58y or sisty, which was not a State?"

12. Once more, Hu inquired, 'And was it not a State which OV's proposed for himself?' The Master again replied, 'Yes; who but princes have to do with ancestral temples, and with audiences but the unvereign? # OV's were to be a small assistant in these services, who could be a great one?

BOOK ES, YEN YUAN.

CHAPTER 1. 1. Yen Yuan asked about perfect virtue. The Master said, 'To subdue one's self and return to propriety, is perfect virtue. If a man can for one day subdue himself and return to propriety, all under heaven self accribe perfect virtue to him. Is the practice of perfect virtue from a man himself, or is it from others?

2. Yeen Yuaan said, 1 beg to ask the steps of that process." The Master replied, "Look not at what is contrary to propriate: faten not to what is contrary to propriety; speak not what is contrary to propriety; make no movement which is contrary to propriety." Ten Yuan then said, "Though I am deficient in intelligence and vigour, I will make it my business to practise this lesson."

CNAPTER 8. Chung-kung asked about perfect virtue. The Master said, '8 is, when you go almoad, to behave to every one as 8 you were receiving a great guest; to employ the people as 8 you were assisting at a great sacrifice; not to do to others as you would not wish done to yoursell, to have no mumuring against you in the country, and none in the family.' Chung kung said, 'Though I am deficient in intelligence and vigout, I will make 8 my business to practise this lesson.'

CHAPTER III. 1. Sze-ma Niu asked about perfect virtue.

Confucius

Book of Music

The Master said, 'The man of perfect virtue is cautious and slow in his speech.'

 'Cautious and slow in his speech? said Nic;- 'is this selust is meant by perfect situat?' The Master said, 'When a man feels the difficulty of doing, can be be other than cautious and slow in speaking?'

CHAPTER N. 1. Sce-ma Niu asked about the superior man. The Master said, 'The superior man has neither anaiety nor fear.'

Being without anxiety or least' said Nui;- 'does this constitute what we call the superior man?'

 The Master said, 'When internal examination discovers nothing wrong, what is there to be anxious about, what is there to fear?'

CHAPTER V. 1. Sze-ma Niu, full of anxiety, said, 'Other men all have their brothers, I only have not.'

Tote-Itsia said to him, "There is the following saying which I have heard:-

 "Death and He have their determined appointment; riches and honours depend upon Heaven."

4. Let the superior man never fail reserventially to order his own conduct, and let him be respectful to others and observant of propriety... then all within the four seas will be his brothers. What has the superior man to do with being distressed because he has no brothers?"

CHAPTER VI. Tuze-chang asked what constituted intelligence. The Master said, 'He with whom neither stander that gradually scales into the mind, nor statements that startle like a securid in the flesh, are successful, may be called intelligent indeed. Yea, he with whom neither scaling slander, nor startling statements, are successful, may be called fameeing.' CHAPTER VII. 1. Tune-kung asked about government. The Master said, 'The requisites of government are that there be sufficiency of food, sufficiency of military equipment, and the confidence of the people in their sales.'

 Tuze-kung said, '# it cannot be helped, and one of these must be dispensed with, which of the three should be foregone first?' 'The military equipment,' said the Master.

3. Tuze-kung again asked, '#'# cannot be helped, and one of the remaining two must be dispersed with, which of them should be foregone?' The Master answered, 'Fart with the food. From of old, death has been the lot of all men; but if the people have no faith in their rules, there is no standing for the state.'

Toze-kung said, 'Alan! Your words, sit, show you to be a superior man, but four horses cannot overtake the torgost.

 Ornament is an substance; substance is an ornament. The hide of a tiger or a leopard stripped of its hair, is like the hide of a dog or a goat stripped of its hair."

CHAPTER IX. 1. The Duke Ai inquired of Yu Zo, saying. The year is one of scarcity, and the returns for expenditure are not sufficient; - what is to be done?

 Yu Zo replied to him, 'Why not simply title the people?'

 With two tenths, said the duke, 'I find it not enough;- how could I do with that system of one tenth?

Confucius

4. Yu Zo arossened, 'If the people have plenty, their prince will not be left to want alone. If the people are in want, their prince cannot enjoy plenty alone.'

CHAPTER X. 1. Ture-chang basing asked how virtue was to be exalled, and delusions to be discovered, the Master said, 'Hold faithfulness and sincerity as first principles, and be moving continually to what is right;-this is the way to exalt over's virtue.

You lose a man and wish him to lise; you hate him and wish him to die. Having wished him to live, you also wish him to die. This is a case of delusion.

 "It may not be on account of her being rich, yet you come to make a difference."

CHAPTER ID. 1. The Duke Ching, of OI's asked Confuctors about government.

Confluctus replied, 'There is government, when the prince is prince, and the minister is minister; when the father is father, and the son is son.'

 'Goodf' said the duke; 'R, indeed, the prince be not prince, the minister not minister, the father not father, and the son not son, although i have my revenue, can i enjoy R<sup>P</sup>

CHAPTER XM. 1. The Master said, 'Abf it is 'tu, who could with half a word settle Migations?

2. Type-lu never slept over a promise.

CHAPTER XIII. The Master said, 'in hearing litigations, I am like any other body. What is necessary, however, is to cause the people to have no litigations.' CHAPTER EN. Tuze-chang asked about government, The Master said, 'The art of governing is to keep its affairs before the mind without weatiness, and to practise them with undexiating consistency.'

CHAPTER XX: The Master said, 'By extensively studying all learning, and keeping himself under the restraint of the rules of propriety, one may thus likewise not en from what is right.'

CHAPTER EM. The Master said, 'The superior man seeks to perfect the admirable qualities of men, and does not seek to perfect their had qualities. The mean man does the opposite of this.'

CNAPTER EVE. Chi K'ang asked Confuctus about government. Confuctus replied, 'To govern means to rectify. If you lead on the people with correctness, who will dare not to be correct?"

CHAPTER EVEN. Chi K'ang, distressed about the number of thiesen in the state, inquired of Confluctus how to do away with them. Confluctus said, 'F you, six, were not constrout, although you should researd them to do it, they would not steal.'

CHAPTER EX. Chi K'ang asked Confluctus about government, saying. 'What do you say to killing the unprincipled for the good of the principled?' Confluctus replied, 'Six, in camping on your government, why should you use killing at all' Let your exinced desires be for what is good, and the people will be good. The relation between superiors and inferiors, is like that between the wind and the grass. The grass must bend, when the wind blows across k'

Confucius

CHAPTER XX. 1. Tuze-chang asked, 'What must the officer be, who may be said to be distinguished?'

The Master said, 'What is it you call being distinguished?'

3. Ture-chang replied, 'it is to be heard of through the State, to be heard of throughout his clan.'

4. The Master said, 'That is notorially, not distinction.

5. Now the man of distinction is solid and straightforward, and lowes rightercustness. He examines people's words, and looks at their countenances. He is anxious to humble himself to others. Such a man will be distinguished in the country; he will be distinguished in his clan.

6. Yes to the man of notionisty, he assumes the appearance of virtue, but his actions are opposed to it, and he rests in this character without any doubts about himself. Such a man will be heard of in the country; he will be heard of in the clan.'

CHAPTER XEL 1. Fan Ch'lh sambling with the Master under the trees about the sain altars, said, 1 senture to ask how to exalt virtue, to correct cherished exit, and to discover delusions.'

2. The Master said, 'Truly a good question'

3. Y doing what is to be done be made the first business, and success a secondary consideration;— is not this the way to exalt virtue? To assail one's own wickedness and not assail that of others;— is not this the way to correct cherished exil? For a morning's anger to disregard one's own life, and insolve that of his parents;— is not this a case of delusion?"

CHAPTER XXX. 1. Fan Ch'ih asked about henevolence. The Master said, 'It is to lose all men.' He asked about knowledge. The Master said, 'It is to know all men.' Fan Orlh did not immediately understand these answers.

 The Master said, 'Employ the upright and put aside all the crooked;-- in this way the crooked can be made to be upright.'

4. Fan Ch'th retired, and, seeing Tuze-hsia, he said to him, 'A Little while ago, I had an interview with our Master, and asked him about knowledge. He said, 'Employ the upright, and put aside all the crooked;- in this way, the crooked will be made to be upright.' What did he mean?'

5. Taze-Insia said, 'Truly rich is his saying!

6. 'Shun, being in prosession of the kingdom, selected from among all the people, and employed Kao-yao, on which all who were devoid of virtue disappeared. Yang, being in prosession of the kingdom, selected from among all the people, and employed I Yin, and all who were devoid of virtue disappeared.'

CHAPTER EXER. Tuze-kung asked about hiendship. The Manter said, Talthfully admonish your friend, and skillfully lead him on. If you find him impracticable, stop. Do not disgrace yourself."

CHAPTER XEN. The philosopher Tsang said, 'The superior man on grounds of culture meets with his hierads, and by their hieradship helps his virtue.'

BOOK $10, 7528-LU.

CHAPTER 1.1. Tupe-to asked about government. The Master said, 'Go before the people with your example, and be laborious in their affairs.'

 He requested further instruction, and was answered, 'Be not weary (in these things).'

CHAPTER 8. 1. Chung-kung, being chief minister to the Head of the Chi family, asked about government. The Mester said, 'Employ first the services of your various officers, pardon small faults, and raise to office men of virtue and talents.'

 Chung-kung said, 'How shall I know the men of sittue and talent, so that I may raise them to office?' He was answered, 'Raise to office those whom you know. As to those whom you do not know, will others neglect them?'

CHAPTER III. 1. Tuze-lu said, 'The ruler of like has been waiting for you, in order with you to administer the government. What will you consider the first thing to be done?

The Master replied, 'What is necessary is to rectify names.'

3. 'So, indeed?' said "sze-ks. 'You are wide of the mark! Why must there be such rectification?'

Confucius

 The Master said, 'How uncultivated you are, Yu/A superior man, in regard to what he does not know, shown a cautious reserve.

 If names be not correct, language is not in accordance with the truth of things. If language be not in accordance with the truth of things, affairs cannot be carried on to success.

6. When affairs cannot be carried on to success, proprieties and music will not flourish. When proprieties and music do not flourish, punishments will not be properly asserted. When punishments are not properly asserted, the people do not know how to move hand or float.

7. Therefore a superior man considers it necessary that the names he uses may be spoken appropriately, and also that what he speaks may be carried out appropriately. What the superior man requires, is just that in his words there may be nothing incorrect."

CHAPTER N. 1. Fan Ch'ih requested to be taught husbandry. The Master said, 'I am not so good for that an an old husbandman.' He requested also to be taught gedening, and was amseeted, 'I am not so good for that as an old gedener.'

Fan Ch'ih having gone out, the Master said, 'A small man, indeed, is Fan Hsu?

3. If a suggestion towe propriety, the people will not dare not to be revenent. If he lose righteousness, the people will not dare not to submit to his example. If he lose good faith, the people will not dare not to be sincere. Now, when these things obtain, the people from all quarters will come to him, bearing their children on their backs;-- what need has he of a knowledge of husbandry?

CHAPTER V. The Master said, 'Though a man may be able to recite the three hundred odes, yet it, when intrusted with a governmental charge, he knows not how to act, or it when sent to any quarter on a mission, he cannot give his replies unassisted, notwithstanding the extent of his learning, of what practical use is k?

CHAPTER VI. The Mester said, 'When a prince's personal conduct is correct, his government is effective without the issuing of orders. If his personal conduct is not correct, he may issue orders, but they will not be fullowed.'

CHAPTER VB. The Master said, 'The governments of Lo and Wei are brothers.'

CHAPTER VIII. The Master said of Ching, a scion of the ducal family of Wei, that he knew the acconomy of a family well. When he began to have means, he said, 'Na! here is a collection' When they were a little increased, he said, 'Na! this is complete?' When he had become rich, he said, 'Na! this is admisable?'

CHAPTER IX. 1. When the Master seent to Wei, Zan Yu acted as driver of his carriage.

The Master observed, 'How numerous are the people."

 Yu said, "Since they are thus numerous, what more shall be done for them?" Exich them," was the reply.

 'And when they have been enriched, what more shall be done?' The Master said, 'Teach them.'

CHAPTER X. The Master said, 'If there were (any of the princes) who would employ me, in the course of tasther months, I should have done something considerable. In three years, the government would be perfected.'

Confucius

CHAPTER E. The Master said, "If good men serve to govern a country in succession for a hundred years, they would be able to transform the violently bad, and dispense with capital punishments." True indeed is this saying"

CHAPTER XII. The Master said, 'If a truly royal ruler were to arise, it would still require a generation, and then virtue would prevail.'

CHAPTER EIR. The Master said, 'If a minister make his own conduct correct, what difficulty will be have in assisting in government? If he cannot rectily himself, what has he to do with rectilying others?

CHAPTER EN: The disciple Zan returning from the court, the Master said to him, 'How are you to late?' He replied, 'We had government business.' The Master said, 'R must have been family affairs. If there had been government business, though I am not now in office, I should have been comulted about k.'

CHAPTER EX. 1. The Duke Ting asked whether there was a single sentence which could make a country prosperous. Confuctus replied, 'Such an effect cannot be espected from one sentence.

There is a saying, however, which people have- "To be a prince is difficult; to be a minister is not easy."

 If a ruler knows this, -- the difficulty of being a prince, -- may there not be expected from this one sentence the prosperity of his country?

4. The duke then said, 'to there a single sentence which can rain a country? Confucius replied, 'Such an effect as that cannot be espected from one sentence. There is, however, the saying which people have-- 'I have no pleasure in being a prince, but only in that no one can offer any opposition to what I say?"

5. If a ruler's secrets be good, is it not also good that no one oppose them? But if they are not good, and no one opposes them, may there not be expected from this one sentence the rule of his country?

CHAPTER XM. 1. The Duke of Sheh asked about government.

The Master said, 'Good government obtains, when those who are near are made happy, and those who are far off are attracted.'

CHAPTER EVE. Tuze-baia, being governor of Chu-fu, anked about government. The Manter said, 'Do not be desirous to have things done quickly: do not look at small advantages. Desire to have things done quickly presents their being done thoroughly. Looking at small advantages presents great affairs from being accomplished.'

CHAPTER EX18. 1. The Duke of Shah informed Confuctor, saying, 'Among us here there are those who may be styled upright in their conduct. If their father have stolen a sheep, they will bear witness to the fact.'

 Confluctus said, 'Among us, in our part of the country, those who are upright are different from this. The father conceals the misconduct of the son, and the son conceals the misconduct of the father. Uprightness is to be found in this.'

CHAPTER EEK. Fan Ch'lh asked about perfect virtue. The Master said, '8 is, in retirement, to be sedately grave; in the management of business, to be reverently attentive; in intercourse with others, to be strictly sincare. Though a man go among rude, uncultivated tribes, these qualities may not be neglected."

Confucius

CHAPTER EX. 1. Tuze-kung asked, saying, 'What qualities must a man possess to antitle him to be called an officer? The Master said, 'He who in his conduct of himself maintains a sense of shame, and when sent to any quarter will not disgrace his prince's commission, desenses to be called an officer.'

 Tuze-kung pursued, 'I wenture to ask who may be placed in the next lower sank?' And he was told, 'He whom the circle of his relatives pronounce to be filial, advan his helicee-villagers and neighbours pronounce to be futernal.'

3. Again the disciple asked, 'I venture to ask about the class still next in order.' The Master said, 'They are determined to be sincare in what they say, and to carry out what they do. They are obstinute little men. Yet perhaps they may make the next class.'

4. Toze-kung finally inquired, 'Of what sort are those of the present day, who engage in government?' The Master said 'Pooh' they are so many pecks and hampen, not worth being taken into account.'

CHAPTER XEI. The Master said, "Since I cannot get men pursuing the due medium, to whom I might communicate my instructions, I must find the ardent and the cautiously-decided. The ardent will advance and lay hold of truth; the cautiously-decided will keep themasters from what is arrong."

CHAPTER XXX. 1. The Master said, 'The people of the south have a saying- 'A man without combancy cannot be either a wicard or a doctor.' Good!

Inconstant in his sintue, he will be visited with diagrace.'  The Master said, 'This arises simply from not attending to the prognostication.'

CHAPTER XXIII. The Master said, 'The superior man is affable, but not adulatory: the mean man is adulatory, but not affable.'

CHAPTER XEN. Type-kung asked, saying, 'What do you say of a man who is lowed by all the people of his neighborhood?' The Master replied, 'We may not for that accord our approval of him.' 'And what do you say of him who is hated by all the people of his neighborhood?' The Master said, 'We may not for that conclude that he is had. It is better than either of these cases that the good in the neighborhood love him, and the had hate him.'

CHAPTER XEV. The Master said, 'The superior man is newy to sense and difficult to please. If you try to please him in any way which is not accordant with right, he will not be pleased. But in his employment of men, he uses them according to their capacity. The mean man is difficult to sense, and easy to please. If you try to please him, though it be in a way which is not accordant with right, he may be pleased. But in his employment of men, he wishes them to be equal to exerpthing.'

CHAPTER EEM. The Master said. The superior man has a dignified ease without pride. The mean man has pride without a dignified ease.

CHAPTER XEVE. The Master said, 'The firm, the enduring, the simple, and the modest are near to virtue.'

CHAPTER XXVIII. Tuze-lu asked, saying, 'What qualities must a man possess to entitle him to be called a scholar?' The Master said, 'He must be thus,- earnest, urgent, and bland-- among his friends, earnest and urgent; among his brethren, bland.'

CHAPTER XXIX. The Master said, 'Let a good man teach the people seven years, and they may then likewise be employed in war.'

CHAPTER XXX. The Master said, 'To lead an uninstructed people to war, is to throw them away.'

BOOK IN. HSIEN WAN.

CRAFTER 1. Huten asked what was shamehul. The Master said, 'When good government prevails in a state, to be thinking only of salary; and, when bad government prevails, to be thinking, in the same way, only of salary;- this is shamehul.'

CHAPTER R. 1. 'When the lose of superiority, boasting, resentments, and covetousness are repressed, this may be deemed perfect virtue.'

 The Master said, 'This may be regarded as the achievement of what is difficult. But I do not know that it is to be deemed perfect virtue.'

CHAPTER III. The Master said, 'The scholar who charishes the lose of comfort is not fit to be deemed a scholar.'

CHAPTER N. The Master said, 'When good government prevails in a state, language may be fully and bold, and actions the same. When bad government prevails, the actions may be fully and bold, but the language may be with some reserve.

CHAPTER V. The Master said, 'The situous will be sure to speak correctly, but those whose speech is good may not always be vittuous. Men of principle are sure to be bold, but those who are bold may not always be men of principle."

Confucius

CHAPTER VI. Nam-kung Kuen, submitting an impuity to Confluction, said, 1 wan skillful at archery, and Ao could move a boat along upon the land, but neither of them deed a natural death. Yu and Ori personally senseght at the toils of husbandry, and they became possessors of the kingdom.' The Master made no reply, but when Nan-kung Kao went out, he said, 'A superior man indeed is this? An esteemer of sintue indeed is this?

CHAPTER VB. The Master said, 'Superior men, and yet not always virtuous, there have been, alan' But there never has been a mean man, and, at the same time, virtuous.'

CHAPTER VIII. The Master said, 'Can there be love which does not lead to strictness with its object? Can there be loyally which does not lead to the instruction of its object?'

CHAPTER IX. The Master said, 'to preparing the governmental notifications, P'i Shan first made the rough draft; Shi-shu examined and discussed its contents; Tute-yu, the manager of Foreign intercourse, then polished the style; and, finally, Tute-ch'an of Tung-E gave 8 the proper elegance and finish.'

CHAPTER X. 1. Some one asked about Tsze-ch'an. The Master said, 'He was a kind man.'

He asked about Tuze-Ini. The Master said, 'That man!' That man?'

 He asked about Kean Chung. Yor him,' said the Master, 'the city of Pien, with three hundred families, was taken from the chief of the Po Samily, who did not other a murmuring word, though, to the end of his life, he had only coarse rice to eat.

CHAPTER E. The Master said, 'To be poor without mamuring is difficult. To be rich without being proud is same.'

CHAPTER XX. The Master said, 'Mang Kung-ch's is more than fit to be chief officer in the families of Chao and Wei, but he is not fit to be great officer to either of the States Tang or Huleh.'

COMPTER XM. 1. Ture-tu asked what constituted a COMPLETE man. The Master said, 'Suppose a man with the knowledge of Tsang Wu-chung, the breedom from constituaness of Kang-ch's, the branery of Osnang of Pien, and the varied talents of Ean Of'sc; add to these the accomplishments of the rules of propriety and music:- such a one might be reckoned a COMPLETE man.'

2. He then added, 'But what is the necessity for a complete man of the present day to have all these things? The man, who in the view of gain, thinks of righterousness, who in the view of danger is prepared to give up his Me; and who does not forget an old agreement however far back it extends:-- such a man may be reckoned a COMPLETE man.'

CHAPTER RN. 1. The Master asked Kung-ming Chia about Kung-shu Wan, saying, 'ti it true that your master speaks not, laughs not, and takes not?

 Kung-ming Chia replied, 'This has arisen from the reporters going beyond the truth. - My master speaks when it is the time to speak, and so men do not get tired of his speaking. He laught when there is occasion to be joyful, and so men do not get tired of his laughing.

Confucius

He takes when it is considered with righteousness to do so, and so men do not get fired of his taking." The Mester said, 'So! But is it so with him?"

CRAFTER XX. The Master said, "Tsang Wo-chung, keeping presension of Fang, asked of the duke of Lu to appoint a successor to him in his family. Although it may be said that he was not using force with his science;p, i believe he was."

CNAPTER EXI. The Master said, 'The duke Wan of Tsin was crafty and not upright. The duke Hean of Ch'l was upright and not crafts.'

CNAPTER EVEL 1. Tron-fu said, 'The Duke Hexan caused his brother Chiu to be killed, when Shao Hu died with his master, but Kasan Chung did not die. May not I say that he was wanting in virtue?"

 The Master said, 'The Duke Hean assembled all the princes together, and that not with weapons of war and chariots:- it was all through the influence of Kean Chung. Whose beneficence was like his? Whose beneficance was like his?

CHAPTER EVER. 1. Tuze-kung said, Yawan Chung, I approhemd, was asanting in sittue. When the Duke Hean caused his brother Chiu to be killed, Kasan Chung was not able to die with him. Moreover, he became prime minister to Hean.'

2. The Master said, Yasan Chung acted as prime minister to the Duke Hean, made him leader of all the princes, and united and rectified the whole kingdom. Down to the present day, the people onjoy the gifts which he conterned, But for Kesan Chung, see should now be seearing our hair unbound, and the lappets of our coats buttoring on the left side.  Will you require from him the small fidelity of common men and common women, who would commit suicide in a stream or ditch, no one knowing aruthing about them?"

CHAPTER KIK. 1. The great officer, Hsien, who had been family-minister to Kang-shu Wan, ascended to the prince's court in company with Wan.

The Master, having heard of it, said, 'He deserved to be considered WAN (the accomplished).'

CHAPTER EX. 1. The Master was speaking about the unprincipled course of the duke Ling of Wei, when CN3 K'ang said, "Since he is of such a character, hose is it he does not lose his State?"

 Confluctos said, 'The Chung-shu Yu has the superintendence of his guests and of strangen; the literoid, I'o, has the management of his ancested temple; and Wang-sun Chia has the direction of the army and forces;- with such officers as these, how should he lose his State?"

CHAPTER XXI. The Master said, 'He who speaks without modesty will find it difficult to make his words good.'

CHAPTER XXX. 1. Chan Ch'ang mundered the Duke Chien of Ch'.

 Confluctus bathed, went to court, and informed the duke Ai, saying, "Chan Hang has slain his sovereign. I beg that you will undertake to punish him."

 The duke said, 'inform the chiefs of the three families of it.'

 Confluctus retired, and said, Yollowing in the mar of the great officers, I did not dare not to represent such a matter, and my prince says, "Inform the chiefs of the three families of it."

Confucius

 He went to the chiefs, and informed them, but they would not act. Confucius then said, Yolkowing in the near of the great officers, I did not dare not to represent such a matter."

CHAPTER XXIII. Tuze-to asked hose a ruler should be served. The Master said, 'Do not impose on him, and, moreover, withstand him to his face.'

CHAPTER XXN. The Master said, 'The progress of the superior man is upwards; the progress of the mean man is downwards.'

CHAPTER XEV. The Master said, 'in ancient times, menlearned with a view to their own improvement. Now-adays, men learn with a view to the approbation of others,'

CHAPTER XEM. 1. Chu Po-yu sent a messenger with hiendly inquiries to Confuctor.

 Confluction sait with him, and questioned him. What,' said he, 'is your master engaged in?' The messanger replied, 'My master is annious to make his faults few, but he has not yet succeeded.' He then went out, and the Master said, 'A messanger indeed? A messanger indeed?'

CHAPTER XXVIII. The Master said, 'He who is not in any particular office, has nothing to do with plans for the administration of its duties.' CHAPTER XXVIII. The philosopher Tsang said, 'The superior man, in his thoughts, does not go out of his place.'

CHAPTER KKIK. The Master said, 'The superior man is modest in his speech, but exceeds in his actions.'

CHAPTER XXX. 1. The Master said, 'The way of the superior man is threefold, but I am not equal to it. Virtuous, he is free from anxietles; usine, he is free from perplexities; bold, he is free from fear.

2. Tspe-kung said, 'Mester, that is what you yourself say.'

CHAPTER XXXII. Tuze-kung was in the habit of comparing men together. The Master said, 'Tuze must have reached a high pitch of excellence! Now, I have not lessare for this.'

CHAPTER EXER. The Master said, '1 will not be concarmed at men's not knowing me; I will be concarmed at my own want of ability.'

CHAPTER EXEM. The Master said, 'He who does not anticipate attempts to decaise him, nor think beforehand of his not being believed, and yet apprehends these things readily (when they occur);-- is he not a man of superior worth?

CHAPTER XXXIV. 1. Wei-shang Mau said to Confuctor, 'Ch'lo, how is it that you keep roosting about? is it not that you are an insinuating talker?'

Confluctus said, 'I do not dare to play the part of such a talker, but I hate obstinacy.'

Confucius

CHAPTER XXXV. The Master said, 'A horse is called a ch's, not because of its strength, but because of its other good qualities.'

CHAPTER XXXVI. 1. Score one said, 'What do you say concerning the principle that injury should be recompensed with kindness?"

The Master said, 'With soful then soll you recompense kindness?

 Recompense injury with justice, and recompense kindness with kindness.<sup>2</sup>

CHAPTER XXXVII. 1. The Master said, 'Nasi' there is no one that knows me.'

Tuze-kung said, 'What do you mean by thus saying—that no one known you?' The Master replied, 1 do not murmur against Heasen. I do not grundle against men. My studies lie lose, and my penetisation rises high. But there is Heasen;- that knows me?'

CHAPTER EXEMPL 1. The Kung-po Lian, having slandered Tuze-Iu to Chi-sun, Tuze-Iu Ching-pu informed Confuctus of it, saying, 'Our master is certainly being led astray by the Kung-po Lian, but I have still power enough left to cut Lian off, and expose his corpse in the market and in the court.'

 The Master said, 'I' my principles are to advance, it is so ordered. If they are to fail to the ground, it is so ordered. What can the Kung-po Liao do where such ordering is concerned?"

CHAPTER XXEX. 1. The Master said, 'Some men of worth rative from the world.

2. Some retire from particular states.

3. Some rative because of disrespectful looks.

4. Some retire because of contradictory language."

CHAPTER RL. The Master said, 'Those who have done this are seven men.'

CHAPTER ELI. Tuze-lu happening to pass the night in Shih-man, the gatekeeper said to him, 'Whom do you come from?' Tuze-lu said, 'From Mr. K'ung '' It is he,-- is it not?'- said the other, 'who knows the impracticable nature of the times and yet will be doing in them.'

CHAPTER KLR. 1. The Master was playing, one day, on a musical stone in Wei, when a man, carrying a straw basket, passed the door of the house where Confucton was, and said, 'His heart is full who so beats the musical stone.'

2. A little while after, he added, 'How contemptible is the one-ideaed obstituacy those sounds display! When one is taken no notice of, he has simply at once to give over his with for public employment. "Deep water must be crossed with the clothes or; shallow water may be crossed with the clothes held up."

 The Master said, 'How determined is he in his purpose! But this is not difficult'

CHAPTER RLBL 1. Tron-chang said, 'Bhat is meant when the Shu says that Kao-tsung, while obsensing the usual imperial mourning, was for three years without speaking?

 The Master said, 'Why must Kao-tsung be referred to an an example of this.' The ancients all did so. When the scorenign deel, the officans all attended to their several duties, taking instructions from the prime minister for three years.'

Confucius

CHAPTER KLN. The Master said, 'When rulers lose to observe the rules of propriety, the people respond readily to the calls on them for service.'

CHAPTER KLX Tupe-Iu asked what constituted the superior man. The Master said, 'The cultivation of himself in reverential carefulness.' And is this all?' said Tupe-Iu. 'Ne cultivates himself so as to give rest to others,' was the reply. 'And is this all?' again asked Tupelu. The Master said, 'He cultivates himself so as to give rest to all the people.'- even 'So and Shun were still solicitous about this.'

CHAPTER RLW. Yuan Zang was squatting on his heek, and so waited the approach of the Manter, who said to him, 'is youth not humble as befits a junior; in manhood, doing nothing worthy of being handed down; and heing on to old age:- this is to be a pest.' With this he hit him on the shark with his staff.

CHAPTER REVI. 1. A youth of the village of Ch'ush was employed by Conflucius to carry the messages between him and his visitors. Some one asked about him, saying, '1 suppose he has made great progress.'

 The Master said, 'i observe that he is fond of occupying the seat of a full-grown man; i observe that he walks shoulder to shoulder with his elders. He is not one who is seeking to make progress in learning. He wishes quickly to become a man.'

BOOK XX. WEI LING KUNG.

CHAPTER 1.1. The Duke Ling of Wei asked Confluctus about tactics. Confluctus replied, 'I have heard all about sacrificial vessels, but I have not learned military matters,' On this, he took his departure the next day.

When he was in Chan, their provisions were exhausted, and his followers became so ill that they were unable to rise.

 Tuze-Iu, with evident disustisfaction, said, 'Has the superior man likewise to endure in this way?' The Master said, 'The superior man may indeed have to endure want, but the mean man, when he is in want, gives way to unbridled license.'

CHAPTER R. 1. The Master said, 'Ts'se, you think, I suppose, that I am one who learns many things and keeps them in memory?

2. Tute-kung replied, 'Yes,- but perhaps it is not so?'

3. No," was the ansaser; 'I seek a unity all pervading."

CHAPTER III. The Master said, 'Yo, those who know virtue are fees.'

CHAPTER N. The Master said, 'May not Shun be instanced as having governed efficiently without exertion? What did he do? He did nothing but gravely and revenently occupy his royal seat."

Confucius

CHAPTER V. 1. Ture-chang asked how a man should conduct himself, so as to be everywhere appreciated.

2. The Master said, 'Let his words be sincere and truthful, and his actions honourable and careful,- such conduct may be practised among the sude tribes of the South or the North. If his words be not sincere and truthful and his actions not honourable and careful, will he, with such conduct, be appreciated, even in his neighborhood?

 When he is standing, let him see those two things, as it seem, fronting him. When he is in a carriage, let ham see them attached to the yoke. Then may he subsequently carry them into practice."

Taze-chang wrote these counsels on the end of his sash.

CHAPTER VI. 1. The Master said, 'Truly straightforecard man the historiographer Yu. When good government prevailed in his State, he was like an arrow. When bad government prevailed, he was like an arrow.

 A superior man indeed is Chu Po-pul When good government prevails in his state, he is to be found in office. When had government prevails, he can roll his principles up, and keep them in his breast."

CHAPTER VII. The Master said, 'When a man may be spoken with, not to speak to him is to err in reference to the man. When a man may not be spoken with, to speak to him is to err in reference to our words. The wise err neither in regard to their man nor to their words.' CHAPTER VIEL The Master said, 'The determined scholar and the man of virtue will not seek to live at the expense of injuring their virtue. They will even sacrifice their lives to presence their virtue complete.'

CHAPTER IS. Tuze-kung asked about the practice of virtue. The Master said, "The mechanic, who withen to do his work well, must first sharpen his tools. When you are being in any state, take sensice with the most worthy among its great officers, and make hierds of the most virtuous among its scholars."

CHAPTER X. 1. Yes Yuan asked how the government of a country should be administered.

2. The Master said, Yollow the seasons of Hsia.

3. Wide in the state carriage of Yin.

4. Wear the coromonial cap of Chau.

5. Let the music be the Shao with its partomines.

 Banish the songs of Chang, and keep far from specious talkers. The songs of Chang are licentious; specious talkers are dangerous.'

CHAPTER ID. The Master said, 'If a man take no thought about what is distant, he will find sorrow near at hand.'

CHAPTER XR. The Master said, 'it is all over! I have not seen one who loves virtue as he loves beauty.'

CHAPTER EIR. The Master said, 'Was not Tsang Wan like one who had stolen his situation? He knew the virtue and the talents of Hui of Liu-hsia, and yet did not procure that he should stand with him in court.'

Confucius

CHAPTER XIV. The Master said, 'He who requires much from himself and little from others, will keep himself from being the object of resentment.'

CHAPTER EX. The Master said, 'When a man is not in the habit of saying- "What shall I think of this? What shall I think of this?" I can indeed do nothing with him?

CHAPTER XM. The Master said, 'When a number of people are together, for a whole day, without their consensation luming on righteousness, and when they are fond of camping out the suggestions of a small shreadness;- theirs is indeed a hard case.'

CHAPTER EVE. The Master said, 'The superior man in everything considers righteousness to be essential. He performs if according to the rules of propriety. He brings it forth in humility. He completes it with sincerity. This is indeed a superior man.'

CHAPTER RHM. The Master said, 'The superior man is distressed by his want of ability. He is not distressed by men's not knowing him.'

CHAPTER EE. The Master said, 'The superior man dislikes the thought of his name not being mentioned after his death.'

CHAPTER XX. The Master said, 'What the superior man seeks, is in himself. What the mean man seeks, is in others.'

CHAPTER XXI. The Master said, 'The superior man is dignified, but does not arrangle. He is sociable, but not a partition.'

Book of Music

CHAPTER XXX. The Master said, 'The superior man does not promote a man simply on account of his words, nor does he put aside good words because of the man.'

CHAPTER XXIII. Tuze-kung asked, saying, 'to there one wood which may sense as a rule of practice for all one's life?' The Master said, 'to not RECIPROCITY such a word?' What you do not want done to yourself, do not do to others.'

CHAPTER XXIV: 1. The Master said, 'to my dealings with men, whose evil do 1 blame, whose goodness do 1 praise, beyond what is proper? #1 do sometimes exceed in praise, there must be ground for it is my examination of the individual.

This people supplied the ground why the three dynasties pursued the path of straightforwardness."

CHAPTER XEV. The Master said, "Even in my early days, a historiographer would leave a blank in his test, and he who had a horse would lend him to another to ride. Now, aler! there are no such things."

CHAPTER XEV. The Master said, "specious words confound virtue. Want of forbearance in small matters confounds great plans."

CHAPTER XEVE. The Master said, When the multitude hate a man, it is necessary to examine into the case. When the multitude like a man, it is necessary to examine into the case."

Confucius

CHAPTER XEVER. The Master said, 'A man can enlarge the principles which he follows; those principles do not enlarge the man.'

CHAPTER EXER. The Master said, 'To have faults and not to reform them,- this, indeed, should be pronounced having faults.'

CNAPTER XXX. The Master said, 'I have been the schole day without eating, and the schole night without sleeping:- occupied with thinking. It was of no use. The better plan is to learn.'

CHAPTER XXE. The Master said, 'The object of the superior man is truth. Food is not his object. There is plowing - even in that there is sometimes want. So with learning - emolument may be found in it. The superior man is annious lest he should not get truth; he is not annious lest powerty should come upon him.'

CHAPTER XXXXI. 1. The Master said, 'When a man's knowledge is sufficient to attain, and his sittue is not sufficient to estable him to hold, sehateser he may have primed, he will lose again.

When his knowledge is sufficient to attain, and he has virtue enough to hold fast, if he cannot govern with dignity, the people will not respect him.

 When his knowledge is sufficient to attain, and he has sinke enough to hold fast; when he governs also with dignity, yet if he try to move the people contrary to the rules of propriety -- hall excellence is not reached."

CHAPTER EXEM. The Master said, The superior man cannot be known in little mattern; but he may be intrusted with great concerns. The small man may not be intrusted with great concerns, but he may be known in little matters."

CHAPTER EXEN: The Master said, 'Votue is more to man than either water or fire. I have seen men die from treading on water and fire, but I have never seen a man die from treading the course of virtue.'

CHAPTER XXEN. The Master said, 'Lot every man consider virtue as what devokes on himself. He may not yield the performance of it even to his teacher.'

CHAPTER EXEM. The Master said, 'The superior man is correctly fem, and not fem manely.'

CHAPTER XXXVIII. The Master said, 'A minister, in sensing his prince, resenently discharges his duties, and makes his amolument a secondary consideration.'

CHAPTER EXEMP. The Master said, 'In teaching there should be no distinction of classes.'

CHAPTER XXXIX. The Master said, 'Those whose courses are different cannot lay plans for one another.'

CHAPTER RL. The Master said, 'to language it is simply required that it convey the meaning.'

CHAPTER B21.1. The Music-master, Mien, having called opon him, when they came to the steps, the Master said, 'Here are the steps.' When they came to the mat for the guest to sit opon, he said, 'Here is the mat.' When all were scatted, the Master informed him, saying, 'So and so is here; so and so is here.'  The Music-master, Mien, having gone out, Tuze-chang asked, saying. 's it the rule to tell those things to the Music-master?"

3. The Master said, 'Yes. This is certainly the rule for those who lead the blind.'

BOOK EN. KE SHE.

CHAPTER L 1. The head of the Osi family was going to attack Osean-ys.

 Ean Yu and Ohi-lu had an interview with Confuctus, and said, 'Our chief, Ohi, is going to commence operations against Osean-yu.'

 Confluctus said, 'Ch'iu, is it not you who are in fault hare?

4. Now, in regard to Chean-ya, long ago, a former king appointed its ruler to preside over the sacrifices to the eastern Marg; moreover, it is in the middt of the tenttory of our State; and its ruler is a minister in direct convesion with the sourceign: – What has your chief to do with attacking it?

5. Zan Yu said, 'Our master wishes the thing: neither of us two ministers wishes k'

6. Confluctus said, "Ch's, there are the words of Chau Zan,- "When he can put forth his ability, he takes his place in the ranks of office; when he finds himself unable to do so, he retires from it. How can he be used as a guide to a blind man, who does not support him when tottering, nor raise him up when fallen."

 Xend further, you speak secondly. When a tiger or rhimoceros escapes from his cage; when a tortoise or piece of jade is injured in its repository:- whose is the fault?

Confucius

 Ean Yu said, 'But at present, Chean-yu is strong and near to Pi; if our chief do not now take it, it sell hereafter be a some to his descendants.'

 Confluctos said. 'Ch'is, the superior man hates that declining to say-...'' want such and such a thing." and harming explanations for the conduct.

10. 1 have heard that rulers of States and chiefs of families are not troubled lent their people should be fee, but are troubled lent they should not keep their several places; that they are not troubled with hears of powerty, but are troubled with hears of a want of contented repose among the people in their several places. For when the people keep their several places, there will be no powerty; when harmony prevails, there will be no scarcity of people; and when there is such a contented repose, there will be no rebelliout upsettings.

 'So it is.- Therefore, if remoter people are not submissive, all the influences of civil culture and virtue are to be cultivated to attract them to be so; and when they have been so attracted, they must be made contented and tranquil.

12. Yessa, here are you, Yu and Ch'iu, assisting your chief. Remoter people are not submissive, and, with your help, he cannot attract them to him, in his own tenttory there are duisions and downfalls, leavings and separations, and, with your help, he cannot presene it.

13. 'And yet he is planning these hostile movements within the State.- 1 am afraid that the somose of the Ossun family will not be on account of Osean-yo, but will be found within the screen of their own court.'

CHAPTER 8. 1. Confluctus said, 'When good government prevails in the empire, commonies, music, and punitise military expeditions proceed from the son of Heasen. When bad government prevails in the empire, commonies, music, and punitise military expeditions proceed from the princes. When these things proceed from the princes, as a sale, the cases will be few in which they do not lose their posser in ten generations. When they proceed from the Great officers of the princes, as a rule, the cases will be few in which they do not lose their posser in fise generations. When the subsidiary ministers of the great officers hold in their grasp the orders of the state, as a rule, the cases will be few in which they do not lose their posser in three generations.

 When right principles presail in the kingdom, government will not be in the hands of the Great officers.

 When right principles prevail in the kingdom, there will be no discussions among the common people."

CHAPTER III. Confuctos said, 'The revenue of the state has left the ducal House now for five generations. The government has been in the hands of the Great officers for four generations. On this account, the descendants of the three Hean are much reduced.'

CHAPTER N. Confluctus said, 'There are three hierodologis which are advantagences, and three which are injurious. Friendologi with the upright, hierodologi with the sincere; and hierodologi with the man of much observation:-these are advantagences. Friendologi with the man of specimum airs, hierodologi with the insinuatingly soft; and hierodologi with the glib-tongued.-- these are injurious.'

CHAPTER V. Confluction said, 'There are three things menfield enjoyment in which are advantageous, and three things they find enjoyment in which are injurious. To field enjoyment in the discriminating study of ceremonies and music; to find enjoyment in speaking of the goodness of others; to find enjoyment in having many worthy friends.-- these are advantageous. To find enjoyment is extravagent pleasures; to find enjoyment is ideness and sauritering to find enjoyment in the pleasures of leasting -- these are injuritue.'

Confucius

CHAPTER VI. Confluctus said, "There are three errors to which they who stand in the presence of a man of virtue and station are liable. They may speak when it does not come to them to speak;- this is called rathmess. They may not speak when it comes to them to speak;- this is called concealment. They may speak without looking at the countenance of their superior;this is called blindness."

CHAPTER VB. Confluctos said, 'There are three things which the superior man guerds against. In youth, when the physical powers are not yet witted, he guards against lust. When he is strong and the physical powers are full of sign, he guards against quarestanteness. When he is old, and the animal powers are decayed, he guards against constitueness.'

CNAFTER VIII. 1. Confluction said, 'There are three things of which the superior man stands in asse. He stands in asse of the ordinances of Heasen. He stands in asse of great men. He stands in asse of the words of sages.

 The mean man does not know the ordinances of Heaven, and consequently does not stand in asse of them. He is disrespectful to great men. He makes sport of the words of sages.'

CHAPTER IX. Confuctors said, "Those who are born with the possession of knowledge are the highest class of men. Those who learn, and so, readily, get possession of knowledge, are the next. Those who are dull and stupid, and yet compass the learning, are another class next to these. As to those who are dull and stupid and yet do not learn;- they are the lowest of the people."

CHAPTER X. Confucion said, 'The superior man has nine things which are subjects with him of thoughtful consideration. In regard to the use of his eyes, he is annious to see clearly. In regard to the use of his ears, he is annious to hear distinctly. In regard to his countemance, he is annious that it should be benign. In regard to his demeanor, he is annious that it should be respectful. In regard to his speech, he is annious that it should be sincere, in regard to his doing of business, he is annious that it should be reservently careful. In regard to what he doubts about, he is annious to question others, When he is angry, he thinks of the difficulties (his anger may insche him in). When he sees gain to be got, he thinks of righteousness.'

CNAPTER ID. 1. Confluction said, "Contemplating good, and pursuing R, an # they could not reach R: contemplating evil, and shrinking from R, as they would from thrusting the hand into boiling scater:-- I have seen such men, as I have heard such words.

 Using in retirement to study their aims, and practising righterousness to carry out their principles:--1 have heard these words, but I have not seen such men."

CHAPTER XX. 1. The duke Ching of Ch'l had a thousand teams, each of four horses, but on the day of his death, the people did not praise him for a single sittue. Po-i and Shu-ch'l died of hunger at the fost of the Shau-yang mountain, and the people, down to the present time, praise them.

2. 'ts not that saying illustrated by this?'

CHAPTER EIE. 1. Ch'an K'ang asked Po-yu, saying. 'Have you heard any lessons from your father different from what we have all heard?'

Po-yu replied, 'No. He was standing alone once, when I parsed below the hall with hasty steps, and said to me, 'Yawe you learned the Odes.' On my replying 'Not yet,' he added, 'If you do not learn the Odes, you will not be fit to converse with." I setlined and studied the Odes.

 'Another day, he was in the same way standing alone, when I passed by below the hall with hasty steps, and said to me, 'Nawe you learned the rules of Propriety?' On my replying 'Not yet,' he added, 'If you do not learn the rules of Propriety, your character cannot be established.' I then retired, and learned the rules of Propriety.

4. 1 have heard only these two things from him."

 Ch'ang K'ang retired, and, quite delighted, said, 'I asked one thing, and I have got three things. I have heard about the Odes. I have heard about the rules of Propriety. I have also heard that the superior man maintains a distant reserve towards his son.'

CHAPTER XIV. The wills of the prince of a state is called by him FU 2804. She calls herself HSIAO TUNE, The people of the State call her OHUN FU 2804, and, to the people of other States, they call her KYBA HSIAO CHUN. The people of other states also call her OHUN FU 2804.

BOOK JVII. YANG HO.

CRAPTER 1. 1. Yang Ho wished to see Confluctos, but Confluctos would not go to see him. On this, he sent a present of a pig to Confluctos, who, having chosen a time when Ho was not at home, went to pay his respects for the gift. He mat him, however, on the way.

2. Ho said to Confluctos, 'Come, let me speak with you' He then asked, 'Can he be called benevolent who keeps his jessel in his bosom, and leases his country to conflusion? Confluctus replied, 'No.' 'Can he be called wise, who is aminus to be engaged in public employment, and yet is constantly losing the opportunity of being so?' Confluctus again said, 'No.' 'The days and months are passing away; the years do not wait for us.' Confluctus said, 'Right, I will go into office.'

CHAPTER 8. The Master said, 'By nature, men are nearly alike; by practice, they get to be wide apart.'

CHAPTER IB. The Master said, 'There are only the wise of the highest class, and the stupid of the lowest class, who cannot be changed.'

CHAPTER N. 1. The Master, having come to Wu-ch'ang, heard there the sound of stringed instruments and singing.

Confucius

Well pleased and smiling, he said, 'Why use an ox knile to kill a foss?'

 Tuze-pu replied, 'Yormerly, Master, I heard you say.-"Bluen the man of high station is well instructed, he loses men; when the man of low station is well instructed, he is easily ruled."

 The Master said, 'My disciples, Yen's words are right. What I said was only in sport.'

CHAPTER ¥ Kung-shan Fu-cao, when he was holding PL and in an attitude of rebellion, insited the Master to visit him, who was rather inclined to go.

Tote-fu was displeased, and said, 'indeed, you cannot go! Why must you think of going to see Kung-shan?"

 The Master said, 'Can it be without some reason that he has insited ME? If any one employ me, may i not make an eastern Chau?"

CHAPTER VI. Tuze-chang asked Confluctos about perfect virtue. Confluctos said, 'To be able to practise five things exerywhere under heaven constitutes perfect virtue.' He begged to ask what they were, and was told, 'Crashy, generosity of soul, sincerity, earnestness, and kindness. If you are grave, you will not be treated with disrepact. If you are grave, you will not be treated with disrepact. If you are grave, you will not be treated with disrepact. If you are grave, you will not be treated with disrepact. If you are grave, you will not be treated with disrepact. If you are grave, you will not be treated with disrepact. If you are grave, you will not all if you are sincere, people will repose trust in you. If you are earnest, you will accomplish much. If you are kind, this soll enable you to employ the services of others.

CHAPTER VII. 1. PL Hui insitting him to shall him, the Manter was inclined to go.

 Tuze-for said, 'Master, formarly I have heard you say, 'When a man in his own person is guilty of doing exit, a superior man will not associate with him.' PI Hu is in reballion, holding presension of Chung-max; if you go to him, what shall be said?' 3. The Master said, 'Yes, I did use these words. But is it not said, that, if a thing be really hand, it may be ground without being made thin?' is it not said, that, if a thing be really white, it may be steeped in a dark fluid without being made black?

4. 'Ren I a bitter gound! Hose can I be hung up out of the way of being eaten?'

CHAPTER VIII. 1. The Manter said, "Yu, have you heard the six words to which are attached six becloudings?" Yu replied, 1 have not."

2. 'Sit down, and I will tell them to you.

5. There is the lose of being benevolent without the lose of learning.- the becksuding here leads to a fastish simplicity. There is the lose of knowing without the lose of learning.- the becksuding here leads to desipation of mind. There is the lose of being sincere without the lose of learning.- the becksuding here leads to an injurious duraged of consequences. There is the lose of straightforwardness without the lose of learning.- the becksuding here leads to rudeness. There is the lose of boldness without the lose of learning.- the boldness without the lose of learning.- the becksuding here leads to insubordination. There is the lose of formers without the lose of learning.- the becksuding here leads to insubordination. There is the lose of formers without the lose of learning.- the becksuding here leads to insubordination. There is the lose of formers without the lose of learning.- the becksuding here leads to estu-agent conduct.'

CHAPTER IX. 1. The Master said, 'My children, why do you not study the Book of Poetry?

2. The Odes serve to stimulate the mind.

 They may be used for purposes of selfcontemplation.

4. They teach the art of sociability.

5. They show how to regulate feelings of resentment.

Trum them you learn the more immediate duty of serving one's father, and the remoter one of serving one's prince.

Confucius

Yeam them are become largely acquainted with the names of birds, beants, and plants.'

CHAPTER X. The Master said to Po-ys, 'Do you give yourself to the Chau-nan and the Shao-nan. The man who has not studied the Chau-nan and the Shao-nan, is like one who stands with his face right against a wall, is he not so?

CHAPTER E. The Master said, "It is according to the rules of propriety," they say.- "It is according to the rules of propriety," they say. Are gerns and silk all that is meant by propriety? "It is music," they say.- "It is music," they say. Are bells and drums all that is meant by music."

CHAPTER XII. The Master said, 'He who puts on an appearance of stem formers, while inwardly he is seenk, is like one of the small, mean people;- yea, is he not like the thief who breaks through, or climbs own, a wall?

CHAPTER XM. The Master said, 'Your good, careful people of the villages are the thieses of virtue.'

CHAPTER XIV. The Master said, 'To tell, as use go along, subat use have heard on the usay, is to cast away our virtue.'

CHAPTER XX. 1. The Master said, 'There are those mean creatures' How impossible it is along with them to serve one's prince!

While they have not get their aims, their analety is how to get them. When they have get them, their analety is lest they should lose them.  When they are analisus lest such things should be lost, there is nothing to which they will not proceed."

CHAPTER XM. 1. The Master said, 'Anciently, men had three failings, which now perhaps are not to be found.

2. The high-mindedness of antiquity showed itself in a divergerd of small things; the high-mindedness of the present day shows itself in wild license. The stem dignity of antiquity showed itself in grave reserve; the stem dignity of the present day shows itself in quaneticine pensenseness. The stupidity of antiquity showed itself in straightforwardness; the stupidity of the present day shows itself in sheer decalt."

CHAPTER 208. The Master said, Time words and an insinuating appearance are seldom associated with sinua."

CHAPTER EVEN. The Master said, 'I hate the manner in which purple takes away the luster of vermilion. I hate the way in which the songs of Chang confound the music of the Va. I hate those who with their sharp mouths overthrow kingdoms and families.'

CHAPTER REK. 1. The Master said, 'I would prefer not speaking.'

Toze-kung said, 'If you, Manter, do not speak, what shall use, your disciples, have to record?"

 The Master said, "Does Heasen speak? The four seasons pursue their courses, and all things are continually being produced, but does Heasen say anything?"

CHAPTER XX. Zu Pei wished to see Confucius, but Confucius declined, on the ground of being sick, to see him. When the bearer of this message went out at the door, (the Master) took his lute and sang to it, in order that Poi might hear him.

Confucius

CHAPTER XXI. 1. Tuai Wo asked about the three years' mourning for parents, saying that one year was long emough.

 If the superior man,' said he, 'abstains for three years from the observances of propriety, those observances will be quite lost. If for three years he abstains from music, music will be ruined.

 Within a year the old grain is exhausted, and the new grain has sprung up, and, in procuring fire by friction, see go through all the changes of wood for that purpose. After a complete year, the mourning may stop.<sup>1</sup>

 The Master said, 'If you were, after a year, to eat good rice, and wear embroidered clothes, would you feel at ease?' 1 should,' replied Wo.

5. The Master said, 'F you can heel at ease, do it. But a sugerior man, during the whole period of mourning, does not enjoy pleasant food which he may eat, nor denise pleasare from music which he may hear. He also does not feel at ease, if he is comfortably lodged. Therefore he does not do shat you propose. But now you feel at ease and may do it.'

6. That Wo then went out, and the Master said, 'This shows 'Yu's want of virtue. It is not till a child is three years old that it is allowed to leave the arms of its parents. And the three years' mounting is universally observed throughout the empire. Did Yu enjoy the three years' toxe of his parents?"

CHAPTER XXX. The Master said, 'Hard is it to deal with him, who will stuff himself with food the whole day, without applying his mind to anything good. Are there not gamenters and chess players? To be one of these would still be better than doing softing at all.' CHAPTER EXER. Tuze-to said, 'Does the superior man enteem valour?' The Master said, 'The superior man holds righteousness to be of highest importance. A man in a superior situation, having valour without righteousness, will be guilty of imubordination; one of the losser people having valour without righteousness, will commit robbery.'

CHAPTER XERV 1. Tune-kung said, 'Han the superior man his hatreds also?' The Master said, 'He has his hatreds. He hates those who proclaim the euli of others. He hates the man who, being in a lose station, slanders his superiors. He hates those who have salour merely, and are unobservant of propriety. He hates those who are forecard and determined, and, at the same time, of contracted understanding.'

2. The Master then inquired, 'Ts'an, have you also your hateeds?' Tuze-kung replied, 'I hate those who pry out matters, and ascribe the knowledge to their windom. I hate those who are only not modest, and think that they are valourous. I hate those who make known secrets, and think that they are straightforward.'

CHAPTER XEV. The Master said, 'Of all people, girls and servants are the most difficult to behave to. If you are familiar with them, they lose their humility. If you maintain a reserve towards them, they are discontented.'

CHAPTER XXVI. The Master said, 'When a man at forty is the object of dislike, he will always continue what he is.'

BOOK EVEL WEI TSZE

CHAPTER L 1. The Viscount of Wei withdress from the court. The Viscount of Chi became a slave to Chau. Pikan remonstrated with him and died.

Conflucius said, 'The Yin dynasty possessed these three men of sixtue.'

CNAPTER 8. Hui of Liu-Itsia being chief criminal judge, was thrice dismissed from his office. Some one said to him, 'is it not yet time for you, sit, to lease this?' He replied, 'Serving men in an upright way, where shall I go to, and not experience such a thrice- repeated dismissal? If I choose to serve men in a crooked way, what recessily is there for me to lease the country of my parents?"

CHAPTER III. The duke Ching of Ch', with reference to the mammer in which he should treat Confucius, said, 1 cannot treat him as 1 would the chief of the Chi family, 1 will treat him in a manner between that accorded to the chief of the Chi, and that given to the chief of the Mang family.' He also said, 'I am old, I cannot use his doctrines,' Confucius took his departure.

CHAPTER N. The people of Ch's sent to Lu a present of female musicians, which Chi Hean received, and for three days no court was held. Confucius took his departure.

Confucius

CHAPTER V. 1. The madman of Oh's, Ohish-yu, passed by Confuctor, singing and saying, 'O FANGJ O FANGJ How is your virtue degenerated. As to the past, reprod is useless; but the future may still be provided against. Give up your vain pursuit. Give up your vain pursuit. Peel assaits those who now engage in affairs of government.'

Confuctus alighted and wished to consense with him, but Chiefe-yu hastened away, so that he could not talk with him.

CHAPTER VI. 1. Ch'ang-tou and Chiels-ni were at work in the field together, when Confucius passed by them, and sent Tuze-fu to inquire for the ford.

 Ch'ang-tsu said, 'Who is he that holds the reins in the carriage there?' Tute-fu told him, 'R is K'ung Ch'is.' 'Is it not K'ung Ch'is of Lu?' asked he. 'Yes,' sum the reply, to which the other rejained, 'He knows the ford.'

5. Type-fu then inquired of Chieh-ni, who said to him, 'Who are you, sit?' He arcseered, 'I am Chung Yu.' 'Ree you not the disciple of K'ung Ch'u of Lu?' asked the other. 'I am,' replied he, and then Chieh-ni said to him, 'Disorder, like a seedling ficod, spreads over the whole empire, and who is he that will change its state for you?' Than fullow one who merely withdows from this one and that one, had you not better fullow those who have withdown from the world altogether?' With this he fell to covering up the seed, and proceeded with his work, without stopping.

4. Type-lu went and reported their remarks, when the Master observed with a sigh, 'It is impossible to associate with birds and beasts, as if they were the same with us, if I associate not with these people,with markind,- with whom shall I associate?' If right principles prevailed through the empire, there would be no use for me to change its state."

CHAPTER VIE. 1. Tuze-ku, fullowing the Master, happened to fail behind, when he met an old man, camping across his shoulder on a staff a basket for weeds. Tuze-ku said to him, 'Have you seen my master, sit? The old man replied, 'Your four limbs are unaccustomed to toil, you cannot distinguish the five kinds of grain:-- who is your master?' With this, he planted his staff in the ground, and proceeded to weed.

Tuze-ku joined his hands across his breast, and stood before him.

 The old man kept Tuze-fu to pass the night in his house, killed a foul, prepared millet, and feasted him.
 He also introduced to him his two sons.

4. Next day, Tupe-fu went on his way, and reported his adventure. The Master said, 'He is a recluse,' and sent Tupe-fu back to see him again, but when he got to the place, the old man was gone.

5. Tuze-fu then said to the family, 'Not to take office is not righteoux. If the relations between old and young may not be neglected, how is it that he sets aside the duties that should be observed between sovereign and miniater? Wishing to maintain his personal purity, he allows that great relation to come to confusion. A superior man takes office, and performs the righteous duties belonging to it. As to the failure of right principles to make progress, he is aware of that.'

CHAPTER VIII. 1. The men who have retired to privacy from the world have been Po-i, Shu-ch'i, Yu-chung, I-yi, Chu-chang, Hui of Liu-Insia, and Shao-Ben.

 The Master said, 'Refusing to surrender their wills, or to submit to any faint in their persons;- such, I think, were Po-1 and Shu-ch'l.

Confucius

5. 'It may be said of Hui of Liu-Inia, and of Shao-lien, that they summdered their wills, and submitted to taint in their persons, but their words corresponded with reason, and their attions were such as men are analous to see. This is all that is to be remarked in them.

4. 'It may be said of Yu-chung and i-yi, that, while they hid themselves in their seclasion, they gave a license to their words; but, in their persons, they succeeded in preserving their purity, and, in their retirement, they acted according to the exigency of the times.

5. 'I am different from all these. I have no course for which I am predetermined, and no course against which I am predetermined.'

CHAPTER IX. 1. The grand music master, Chih, went to Ch's.

 Kan, the master of the band at the second meal, sent to OVs. Lian, the band master at the third meal, sent to To'ai. Onselt, the band master at the fourth meal, sent to OVin.

3. Fang-shu, the drum master, withdrew to the north of the river.

 Wu, the master of the hand drum, withdress to the Han.

Yang, the assistant music master, and Hsiang, master of the musical stone, withdrew to an island in the sea.

CHAPTER X. The duke of Chau addressed his son, the duke of Lu, saying. The virtuous prince does not neglect his relations. He does not cause the great ministers to repine at his not employing them. Without some great cause, he does not diamits from their offices the members of old families. He does not seek in one man falents for every employment." CHAPTER EL To Chau belonged the eight officers, Po-ta, Po-kees, Chung-tu, Chung-hees, Shu-ya, Shu-hsia, Chitui, and Chi-keea.

BOOK EIK, TSZE-CHANG,

CHAPTER L Tupe-chang said, 'The scholar, trained for public duty, seeing threatening danger, is prepared to sacrifice his life. When the opportunity of gain is presented to him, he thinks of righteousness, in sacrificing, his thoughts are resevential, in mounting, his thoughts are about the grief which he should feel. Such a man commands our approbation indeed.'

CHAPTER 8. Tuze-chang said, 'When a man holds fast to virtue, but without seeking to enlarge 8, and believes right principles, but without firm sincerity, what account can be made of his existence or non-existence?

CHAPTER III. The disciples of Tuze-Insia asked Tuzechang about the principles that should characterize multual intercourse. Tuze-chang asked, 'What does Tuze-Insia say on the subject?' They replied, 'Tuze-Insia says:--'Associate with those who can advantage you. Put among form you those who cannot do so." Tuze-chang observed, 'This is different from what I have learned. The superior man honours the talented and virtuous, and bears with all. He praises the good, and pities the incompetent. Am I prosessed of great talents and uitue?-- who is there among men whom I will not bear with? Am I deuxid of talents and virtue?-- men will put me away from them. What have use to do with the putting away of others?'

Confucius

CHAPTER N. Tuse-Insia said, Tuen in inferior studies and employments there is something worth being looked at: but if it be attempted to carry them out to what is remote, there is a danger of their proving inapplicable. Therefore, the superior man does not practise them."

CHAPTER V. Tupe-Inia said, 'He, who from day to day recognises what he has not yet, and from month to month does not forget what he has attained to, may be said indeed to lose to learn.'

CHAPTER VI. Tuze-Inia said, 'There are learning extensionly, and having a firm and sincare aim; inquiring with earnestness, and reflecting with sall application:virtue is in such a course.'

CHAPTER VII. Tupe-Insia said, 'Mechanics have their shops to deet! in, in order to accomplish their works. The superior man learns, in order to reach to the utmost of his principles.'

CHAPTER VIII. Tuze-Issia said, 'The mean man is sure to gloss his faults.'

CHAPTER IX. Tuze-Insia said, 'The superior man undergoes three changes. Looked at from a distance, he appears stem; when approached, he is mild; when he is heard to speak, his language is firm and decided.'

CHAPTER X. Tuzo-Insia said, 'The superior man, having obtained their confidence, may then impose labours on his people. If he have not gained their confidence, they will thick that he is oppressing them. Having obtained the confidence of his prince, one may then remonstrate with him. If he have not gained his confidence, the prince will think that he is villying him."

CHAPTER ID. Tuze-Insia said, 'When a person-does not transgress the boundary line in the great virtues, he may pess and repess it in the small virtues.'

CHAPTER ER. 1. Tuze-yu said, 'The disciples and fullowers of Tuze-baia, in sprinkling and sweeping the ground, in amseming and rephing, in advancing and recoding, are sufficiently accomplished. But these are only the branches of learning, and they are left ignorant of what is essential.- How can they be acknowledged as sufficiently taught?

2. Tupe-Insia heard of the remark and said, 'Hard Yen Yu is serong. According to the way of the superior man in teaching, what departments are there which he considers of prime importance, and delivers? what are there which he considers of secondary importance, and allows himself to be idle about? But as in the case of plants, which are assorted according to their classes, so he deats with his disciples. How can the way of a superior man be such as to make fools of any of them? Is it not the sage alone, who can unlike in one the beginning and the consummation of learning?"

CHAPTER XIE. Tuze-Insia said, "The officer, having discharged all his duties, should devote his leisure to learning. The student, having completed his learning, should apply himself to be an officer."

CHAPTER XIV. Tuze-Insia said, 'Mourning, having been carried to the utmost degree of grief, should stop with that.'

Confucius

CHAPTER XX. Tupo-Insia said, 'My friend Chang can do things which are hard to be done, but yet he is not perfectly virtues.'

CHAPTER EM. The philosopher Tsang said, 'How imposing is the manner of Chang' it is difficult along with him to practise virtue.'

CHAPTER EVE. The philosopher Tuang said, 1 heard this from our Manter.-- "Men may not have shown what is in them to the full extent, and yet they will be found to do so, on occasion of mourning for their parents."

CHAPTER RMB. The philosopher Tsang said, 1 have heard this from our Master:-- "The Hial piety of Mang Chearg, in other matters, was what other men are competent to, but, as seen in his not charging the ministers of his father, nor his father's mode of government, it is difficult to be attained to."

CHAPTER EER. The chief of the Mang family having appointed Yang Fu to be chief criminal judge, the latter consulted the philosopher Yuang. Yuang said, 'The rules's have failed in their duties, and the people consequently have been discogaritied, for a long time. When you have found out the truth of any accusation, be grieved for and pily them, and do not feel joy at your own ability.'

CHAPTER EX. Tuze-kung said, 'Chau's wickedness was not so great as that name implies. Therefore, the superior man hates to deself in a low-lying situation, where all the exil of the world will flow in upon him.'

CHAPTER XXI. Tuze-kung said, 'The faults of the superior man are like the eclipses of the sun and moon. He has his faults, and all men see them; he changes again, and all men look up to him.'

CNAPTER XXX. 1. Kung-sun Ch'ao of Wei asked Tuzekung, saying. Trom whom did Chung-si get his learning?

2. Tuze-kung replied, 'The disctrines of Wan and Wu have not yet fallen to the ground. They are to be found among men. Men of talents and vitue remember the greater principles of them, and others, not presenting such talents and vitue, remember the smaller. Thus, all presents the doctrines of Wan and Wu. Where could our Master go that he should not have an opportunity of learning them? And yet solut necessity was there for his having a regular master?"

CHAPTER XXIII. 1. Shu-sun Wu-shu-observed to the great officers in the court, saying. "Soe-kung is superior to Chung-ni."

 Tuze-fu Ching po reported the observation to Tuzekung, who said, 'Let me use the comparison of a house and its encompassing wall. My wall only reaches to the shoulders. One may peep over it, and see whatever is valuable in the apartments.

 The wall of my Master is several fathoms high. If one do not find the door and enter by it, he cannot see the ancestral temple with its beauties, nor all the officers in their rich amay.

4. But I may assume that they are few who find the door. Was not the observation of the chief only what might have been especied?

CHAPTER EXIV. Shu-sun Wu-shu having spoken realingly of Ohung-ni, Tuze-kung said, '8 is of no use doing so. Ohung-ni cannot be realed. The talents and situe of other men are hillocks and mounds which may be stepped ower. Ohung-ni is the sun or moon, which it is not possible to step over. Although a man may with to cut himself off from the sage, what harm can be do to the sun or moon? He only shows that he does not know his own capacity.

CHAPTER XEV. 1. Ch'an Tsze-ch'in, addressing Tszekung, said, "You are too modest. How can Chung-ni be said to be superior to you?"

 Tuse-kung said to him. Yor one word a man is often deemed to be wise, and for one word he is often deemed to be foolish. We ought to be careful indeed in what we say.

 Our Master cannot be attained to, just in the same way as the heavens cannot be gone up to by the steps of a stair.

4. Where our Master in the position of the ruler of a State or the chief of a Family, see should find verified the description which has been given of a sage's sule:-- he would plant the people, and forthwith they would be established, he would lead them on, and forthwith they would follow him; he would make them happy, and forthwith multitudes would resurt to his dominions; he would stimulate them, and forthwith they would be harmonious. While he lead, he would be glorious. When he ded, he would be bitterly lamented. How is it possible for him to be attained to?

BOOK XX. TAO YUEN.

CHAPTER 1.1. Yao said, 'Oh' you, Shun, the Heavendetermined order of succession now rests in your person. Sincerely hold fast the due Mean. If there shall be distress and want within the four seas, the Heavenly resenue will come to a perpetual end.'

Shun also used the same language in giving charge to Yu.

5. Fang said, 1 the child Li, presume to use a darkcoloured victim, and presume to announce to Thee, O most great and sovereign God, that the simeer I dare not pardon, and thy ministers, O God, I do not keep in obscurity. The examination of them is by thy mind, O God. 4, in my person, I commit offences, they are not to be attributed to you, the people of the myriad regions. If you in the myriad regions commit offences, these offences must rest on my person.'

Chau conferred great gifts, and the good were anniched.

 XBhough he has his near relatives, they are not equal to my virtuous men. The people are throwing blame upon me, the One man."

 He carefully attended to the weights and measures, examined the body of the laws, restored the discarded officers, and the good government of the kingdom took its course.

 He revised States that had been extinguished, restored families whose line of succession had been broken, and called to office those who had retired into obscurity, so that throughout the kingdom the hearts of the people turned towards him.

Confucius

 What he attached chief importance to, were the food of the people, the duties of mourning, and sacifices.

 By his generosity, he won all. By his sincerity, he made the people repose trust in him. By his earnest activity, his achievements were great. By his justice, all were delighted.

CRAFTER 8. 1. Ture-chang asked Confluctors, saying, 'in what way should a person in authority act in order that he may conduct government properly? The Master replied, 'Let him honour the five excellent, and banish away the four had, things;-- then may be conduct government properly.' Ture-chang said, 'What are meant by the five excellent things?' The Master said, 'When the person in authority is beneficient without great expenditure; when he lays tasks on the people without their repining when he pursues what he desires without being covertuux; when he maintains a digolfied case without being proud; when he is majestic without being fierce.'

2. Toto-chang said, 'What is meant by being benaficant aithout goat expenditure? The Master replied, When the person in authority makes more beneficial to the people the things from which they naturally derive benefit -- is not this being beneficant without great expenditure? When he chooses the labours which are proper, and makes them labour on them, who will regime? When his desires are set on beneuclent government, and he secures it, who will accuse him of covetousness? Whether he has to do with many people or less, or with things great or small, he does not date to indicate any disrepact - is not this to maintain a digrifted ease without any pride? He adjusts his clothes. and cap, and throans a dignity into his looks, so that, thus dignified, he is looked at with asse;- is not this to be majestic without being fance?

3. Tupe-chang then asked, 'What are meant by the four bad things?' The Master said, 'To put the people to death withhout having instructed them;-- this is called cruelly. To require from them, suddenly, the full tale of work, withhout having given them warring;-- this is called oppression. To issue orders as if withhout urgency, at first, and, when the time comes, to insist on them with severity:- this is called injury. And, generally, in the giving pay or mesards to men, to do it in a stingy way;--this is called acting the part of a mere official.'

CHAPTER III. 1. The Master said, 'Without recognising the ordinances of Heaven, it is impossible to be a superior man.

 Without an acquaintance with the rules of Propriety, it is impossible for the character to be established.

 Without knowing the force of words, it is impossible to know men.<sup>1</sup>

K'ung Fu–Tzu, known in the west as Confucius, wrote the 'Six Books' in the sixth century BCE. Consisting of The Book of Poetry, The Book of Rituals, The Book of History, The Book of Changes, The Spring and Autumn Annals, and The Book of Music, knowledge of these books would be the basis of appointment to the Chinese bureaucracy for over 2000 years. Unfortunately, at some point in this period, The Book of Music was lost, leading some to claim that it never really existed.

This edition printed by Parasitic Ventures Press in the Lost Book series.

WWW.PARASITICVENTURESPRESS.COM

≯n∼